

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

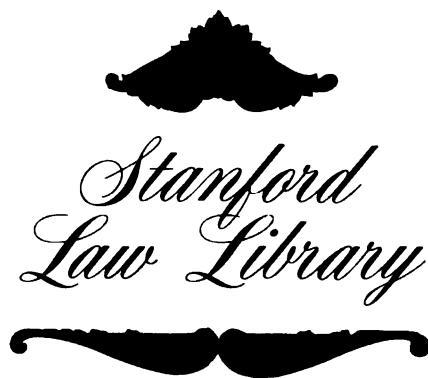

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

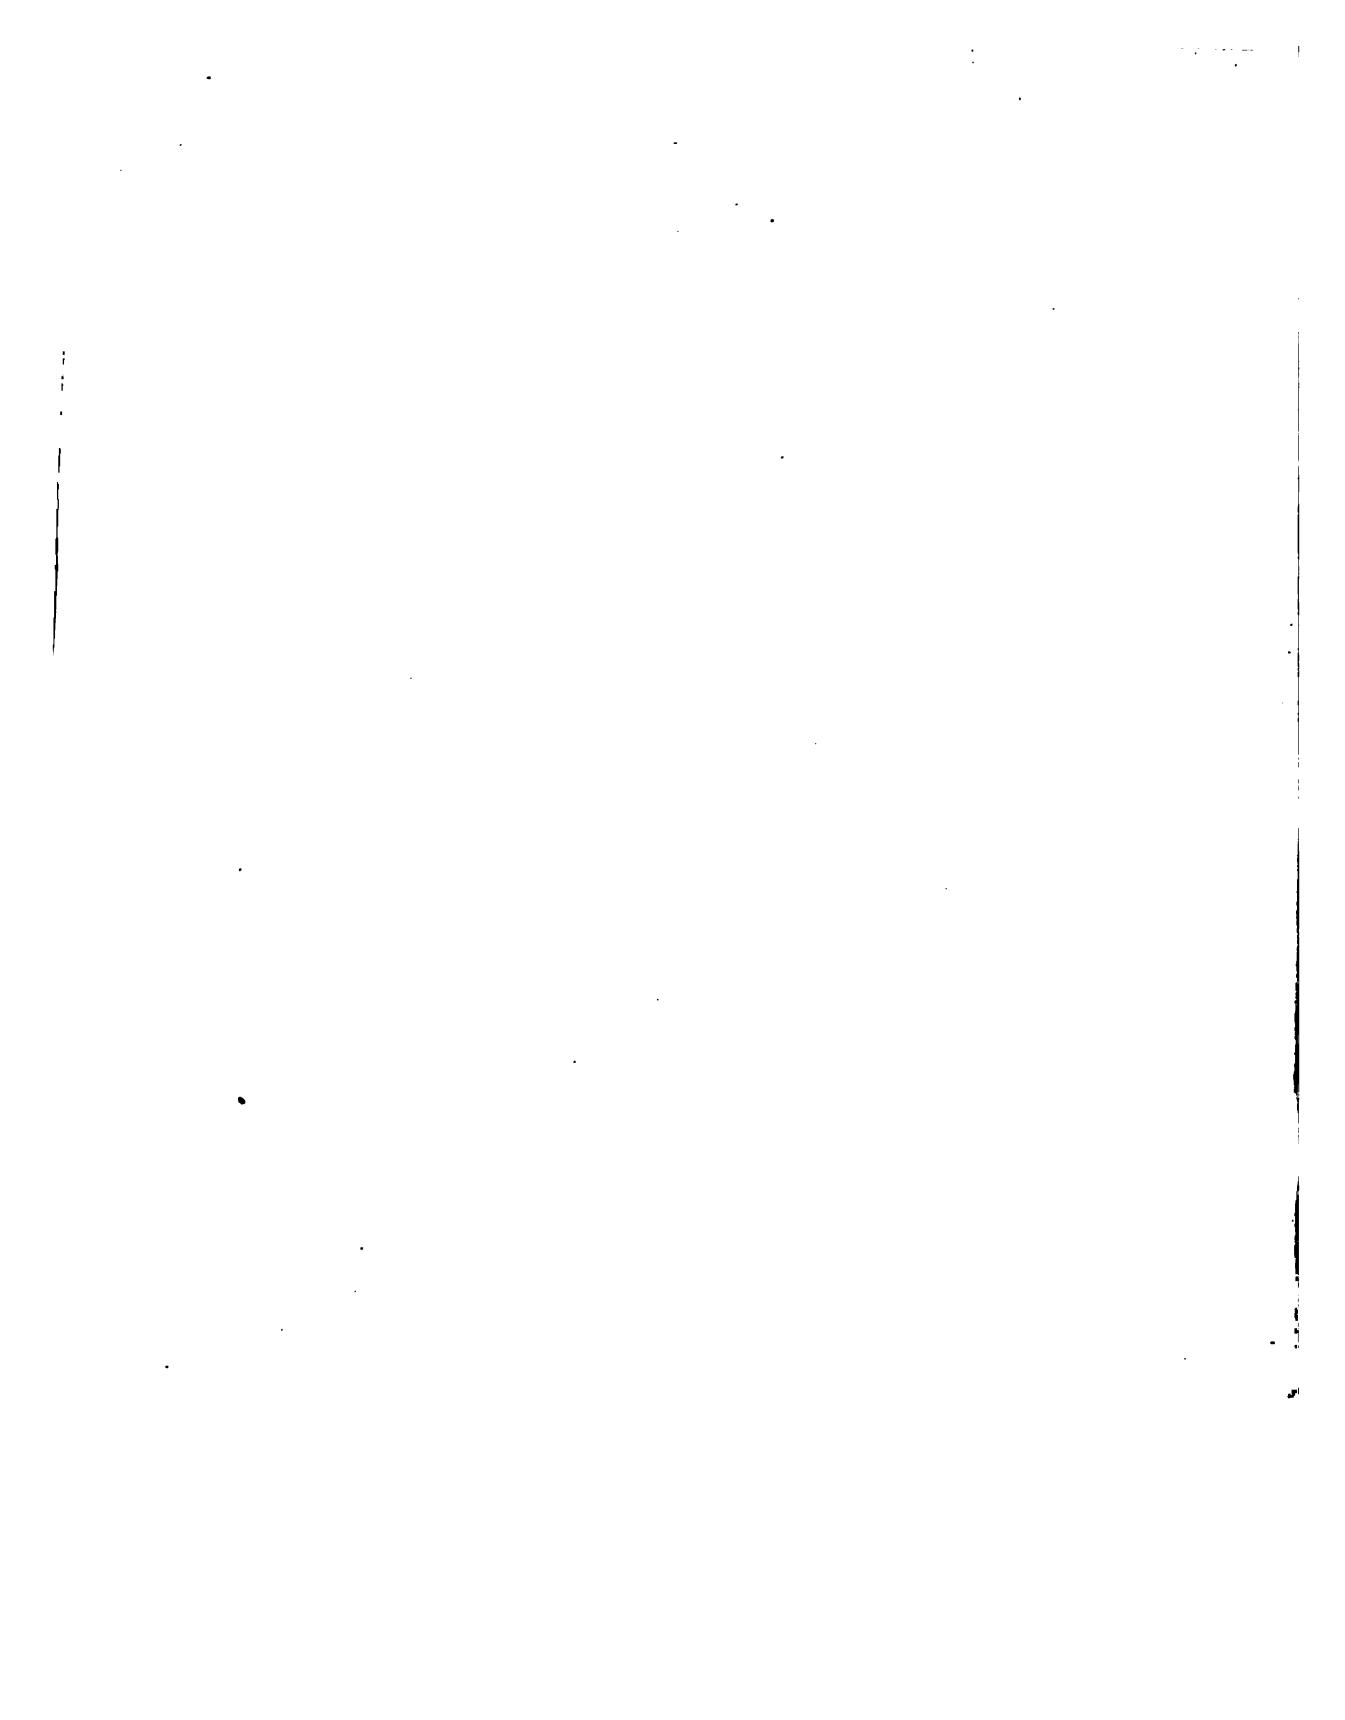

About Google Book Search

Google's mission is to organize the world's information and to make it universally accessible and useful. Google Book Search helps readers discover the world's books while helping authors and publishers reach new audiences. INTRODUCTION.

COCKERSAND ABBEY stands by the sea shore, near the mouth of the river Lune, in a particularly bleak and uninviting situation, not many feet above sea level, nor many yards removed from high-water mark of ordinary tides. A treeless stretch of level arable land, formerly peat moss, intervenes for a couple of miles between it and the nearest "hard land" at Thurnham, a village lying some five miles to the south of Lancaster. Only the Chapter House—a fine specimen of early Decorated work—and fragments of the eastern wall of the north and south transepts remain, but the plan of the greater part of the original buildings would be revealed by careful excavation. The place called Cockersand is extra-parochial, and separates the north-western portion of the township of Cockerham, and the western portion of Thurnham, from the sea, being divided from the latter by a pool now known as Janson's pool, formerly described as the "sunken pool" (caucus pullus). It was undoubtedly carved out of both townships, under circumstances which will shortly appear.

Towards the end of the reign of Henry II., circa 1180-1184, a pious recluse known as Hugh the Hermit, established himself in this place, and being held in reverence by the people of the country round about, was supported by their charitable gifts in the maintenance of first a Hermitage, and then a Hospital for the infirm and lepers.¹ This advance was secured by the munificence of William de Lancaster II., and his wife Hawise de Stutevill, who had been endowed by her husband in the lordship of Garstang, of which this place and Cockerham were members. At her request he granted "in pure and perpetual alms to Hugh the Hermit, the place of Askels-cross and Croc (now Crook), up to the pool (i.e., inland as far as Janson's pool), together with his fishery in Lune, and more beside if they could be made, and all manner of easements in his wood of Wyresdale, for the maintenance of a Hospital." This was witnessed by his said wife, and by Norman his steward, whom I suspect to have been Norman de Redman, his mesne tenant of Yealand. If so, we have the approximate date of this grant, for Norman de Redman died before the end of the fiscal year which closed at Michaelmas, 1184, as appears from the Pipe Roll of that year (31 Henry II.), where it is recorded that Adam, the Dean of Kirkham, proffered one hundred shillings for licence to marry his daughter, who was of the King's donation, to the son of Norman de Redman. This gives the year 1184 as the probable date of the foundation of the Hospital.¹

The next grant bears a close relation to the first. It was made by William de Furness, lord of Thurnham, who during the year 1186 paid a fine of twenty marks for relief of the estates of his father Michael le the Hospitall of Cokersand. Then of longe tyme after, yt was chaunged from the Hospitall to a Priory, and within certeyn yeris after to an Abbey of White Chanons. And for as moche as the said house was maney tymes troubled at the tyme of ther Ellection of theyre Abbot, with the gentilmen of the cuntrey theyre neyghbors, they made sute to the Kyng for his mayntenaunce, to have free election amongst them selfe, and bound ther said house for that priuilege to geve to the Kyng at every Election xx^s, to the Kyng and to his heyres Kynges." ("Visitation of the North by Norroy, A° 1530." Harl. MS., 1499, Art. 69.)

Fleming (Pipe Roll, 32 Henry II., m. 10). He granted "to God and St. Mary, and to the Hospital of Cockersand, and to the brethren serving God there, a portion of his land of Thurnham, to wit, all the land by the sunken pool (now Janson's pool) which runs down from the moss into the great pool of Crook, beyond the old road, and so following the great pool to the deep water of Lune, and so round by the sea to Askels-cross; for the soul of his father Michael, and of his mother Christiana, for his own soul, and the soul of his wife, and the souls of his brethren and sisters."

On the 6th June, 1190, Pope Clement III. issued from the Lateran a Bull of Protection and Privileges to Henry, Prior of the Hospital Monastery of Cockersand, by which the Hospital was firmly established in the place of its foundation, as a Premonstratensian Monastery dedicated to the Virgin Mary. The various grants of land to the Monastery were duly confirmed, particularly those made by the founder, William de Lancaster II. Hugh the Hermit died before the elevation of the Hospital to the degree of a Priory, secured by this Bull, his successor being Henry, who was the first, and probably the only, Prior. This is proved by the following grant found under the title of "Seaton in Copeland," which was confirmed by the Bull of 1190:—

"To all the sons of holy mother Church, Alan, son of Ketel, sendeth greeting in our Lord. Know that with the consent of my heirs, I have granted to God and St. Mary, seven acres of my land in Seaton in Copeland, in pure and perpetual alms, &c. This grant of land was made to them in Kirk-croft, where stands the homestead (mansio) of William, son of Roger." Then follows this note: "William, son of Roger, and his heirs were enfeoffed of this land by Henry, Prior of this House at that time, and by the Convent, rendering 12*d.* yearly at the feast of St. Michael, and at every decease, to mother church, by will duly made, the third part of all their worldly goods."

Before ten years more had passed—such was the rapid growth of this House—the Priory had risen to the degree of an Abbey, under Abbot Roger, who at this time styled himself "Abbot of the Marsh" (de Marisco). In addition to the patronage of the family of Lancaster, the Abbey was enjoying the protection and benefactions of that notable statesman Theobald Walter, upon whom in the year 1194, after the forfeiture of the Honor of Lancaster by the King's unruly brother, Count John of Mortain, King Richard had bestowed the whole Hundred of Amounderness. "For the health of his soul, and the souls of King Henry, King Richard, and John, Count of Mortain, and of Ranulph Glanvill, his friend, Hubert, Archbishop of Canterbury, his brother, Hervey Walter, his father, Matilda Walter, his mother, and all his friends and benefactors, ancestors and successors, Theobald gave his whole Hay of Pilling to God and St. Mary, and to the Abbot and Monks of the Premonstratensian order, in pure and perpetual alms, for the erection of an Abbey of that order." This was afterwards confirmed by King John by a charter which passed at Geddington, on the 14th March, 2nd year (1201), also confirming the place of Cockersand to the said House. A few years later the same King granted to the Abbey two carucates of his demesne estate at Newbigging, near Singleton, in fee farm, for 20s. yearly for all service, together with the judicial privileges of soke and sake.*

At this time serious contentions arose between the newly created Abbey, and that of St. Mary de Pratis, in Leicester, to whom, about the year 1153-4, William de Lancaster I., and his wife Gundreda, with the consent of their son and heir, William de Lancaster II., had given the Manor and Church of Cockerham, the Chapel of Ellel, the township or hamlet of Crimble, and right of common of pasture throughout his fee in Amounderness and Lonsdale. Which grant had been duly confirmed by Henry II., by a general charter of confirmation to that Abbey, which passed at Dover, 2nd to 10th January, 1156.

* The original charter of Theobald Walter's grant of Pilling Hay (1194-1199), and the charters of confirmation from King John in 1201, and King Henry in 1227, are now in the possession of W. H. Dalton, Esq., of Thurnham Hall, Lancaster. The Editor hopes to procure a reproduction of the former, to be included as a frontispiece to Part II. of this work.

William de Lancaster II. succeeded his father about the year 1170, and immediately after seised the said Manor and dispossessed the Abbey of Leicester. It was during the period of this forcible resumption of the Manor that the Hospital of Cockersand was founded upon the seaward portion of this Manor. But after John had received the Honor of Lancaster from his brother Richard I., the Abbot of Leicester sued Hugh de Morvill and Hawise his wife, widow of William de Lancaster II., in the Court of the said John, Count of Mortain, at Lancaster, between the years 1189-1194, and by the oath of twelve liege men recovered the Manor against Hugh and Hawise, who thereupon confirmed the original grant of William de Lancaster I., as also did John, Count of Mortain, as the chief lord. "On the part of the monks of Leicester the sudden rise of an independent Abbey on the territory of which they were chief lords (sic), and the exemption from tithes asserted by a body which was daily augmenting its property within their own parish of Cockerham, could not be beheld without jealousy, and frequent disputes as to boundaries would naturally arise." (Whitaker's History of Richmond, vol. ii. p. 330.)

A composition thereupon took place, whereby the Monks of Leicester granted to the Monks of Cockersand the place in which the Hospital of Cockersand was situate, in pure and perpetual and free alms, with liberty to build an Abbey there, to wit, from the three stones¹ to the bounds of Thurnham through the moss. But the Monks of Cockersand were not to have any common right beyond these bounds, over land or wood belonging to the Monks of Leicester, nor vice versa. They further granted two fisheries, to be made there or elsewhere, for which the Monks of Cocker-sand were to render 12*d.* yearly every Easter, at Cockerham. If the Monks of Cockersand acquired any land thereafter in the parish of Cockerham, they were to pay tithes to the Mother Church of Cockerham, retaining nevertheless the tithes within the said bounds. The Monks of Cockersand further agreed not to acquire any more land within the townfields of Cockerham, of the fee of the Abbey of Leicester, beyond the said site of their house. All excesses committed between the two parties before the sixth year of John, to be kindly forgiven on both sides. This was followed by a second composition in 1230, during the Abbacy of brother Hereward, respecting the division of pasture lying between Wrangpool and Pilling, &c. A third followed in 1242, a fourth between 1242-1245, a fifth in 1340, and a sixth in 1364. Thus the Abbey became established on land formerly part of Cockerham, but confirmed to them as an extra-parochial property by the Bull of Pope Clement, and by King John's confirmation.

Shortly before the end of the reign of John, the Monks of Cockersand received the gift of the advowson of Garstang Church from Gilbert fitz Reinfred, and also a carucate of land in Medlar, and the Mill of Greenhalgh (pp. 168, 278). These were confirmed by a royal charter which passed at Wareham, 20th August, 17th year (1215). The grants of land¹ made each year after this date reached a very considerable number, probably forty or fifty, until the statute of Mortmain in 1279 put a check upon the gift of land to religious houses.

The Register speaks eloquently of the sentimental piety of the Lancashire people of the 13th century; but an examination of all the Registers of religious houses in the county, leads to the conclusion that the feeling which induced so many people dwelling in West Lancashire to have regard to the "health of their own souls, and the souls of their ancestors and successors," was comparatively absent among the inhabitants of the eastern half of the county. Evidence of the attachment of the people of the west to the religious houses of Lancaster, Cockersand, Lytham, Penwortham, and Burscough, still exists in the large number of adherents to the Church of Rome still to be found there, proving that this attachment of the people to the faith of their forefathers is due rather to principles of Conservatism than to local influences.

The Chartulary, or Register of charters and other legal instruments belonging to the Abbey of Cockersand, is a volume containing 166 leaves of parchment, measuring 8-in. by 11 $\frac{1}{2}$ -in., written on both sides of the leaf in very clear, bold, round handwriting, of the style usual to the 13th century. We learn from an introductory paragraph on fol. 5^b that the volume was compiled by Brother Robert de Lachford, during the years 1267-1268, and in the first instance contained abstracts of all the charters of the house extant in the former year. The compilation of the Register of these writings was apparently completed about Michaelmas, 1268. Nearly all the original entries have roughly rubricated initial letters, a detail generally omitted in the later entries, both of charters registered by Robert de Lachford after 1268, and of those registered by subsequent recorders, after Lachford's death, which may have been about 1280. A uniform system of condensation appears to have been adopted, as will be seen by comparing the text of various charters on pp. 114, 137, with Christopher Towneley's transcripts, as given in the Appendix, and also in a few other instances, where the abstracts in the Chartulary have been extended by the addition (within square brackets) of the terms of the original charters. As a general rule the releasing, warranty, and attesting clauses have been omitted. The last-named omission is greatly to be regretted, especially as regards the 12th century and early 13th century charters.

The Chartulary commences with the Bull of Protection and Privileges by Pope Clement III., granted in the year 1190, which is practically the Foundation Charter of the House, and was probably obtained through the influence of Theobald Walter and his brother Hubert, afterwards Archbishop of Canterbury. This is followed by two general Bulls to the Premonstratensian order by Pope Honorius III., and one by Innocent IV. Then follow special Bulls to the Abbey by Pope Gregory IX., and an Indulgence by Pope Alexander IV. The list concludes with three general Bulls to the order, conveying common privileges. Royal charters and confirmations occupy a couple of pages, followed by a few memoranda, and an interesting copy, made after the death of Archbishop Gray, of the Provincial Constitution of York. The next four pages are occupied by charters of confirmation granted by several of the Lords of Wyresdale ; Ranulf Blundevill, Earl of Chester ; Roger de Mowbray ; Hugh Bussel ; Henry de Lacy, Earl of Lincoln, and a charter of Thomas de Rigmaden of the 14th century in English. At fol. 19 the general Register of Charters commences.

The series of instruments preserved in this volume possesses great genealogical and topographical interest. It is, however, noticeable that very few belong to a later period than the end of the 13th century. It is obvious therefore, that some charters of later date, besides an enormous mass of leases, rent rolls, and other documents, must have existed at the time of the final dissolution of this Monastery in 1539. Of these, only a few records, which have been preserved in private hands, are known to exist. It is highly desirable that information should be supplied of all such collections, in order that the Chetham Society may preserve some record of the contents of these documents, before they suffer the ruthless fate which has already overtaken so many private collections of historical documents relating to the county.

A fairly good idea of a Lancashire village in the 13th century may be drawn from the contents of the Chartulary. Each township must have been practically self-supporting, and to a great extent the number and condition of the population depended upon the state of the plough teams. If the oxen were sufficient in number and "strong to labour," given a fair season, there would be an ample supply of bread stuff. The town-fields (territorium, campus) usually lay in furlongs or shots around the homesteads. They were usually divided by highways and streams, or bounded by a river bank, the commons or wastes. (Stainall, No. 6, p. 116.) Each furlong had its distinctive name, and was sub-divided into many acre, half acre, quarter acre, or smaller strips, called "lands" or "sellions" (selio,¹ sulung, sillon), to which access was obtained by a head-land. Those which abutted upon other strips at right angles were called "butts," and angular shaped pieces or corners of fields, which could not be divided lengthwise in furrows, were called gores, or goredales, tongues or patches (goredula, tunga, frissura). The larger denominations of land measurement were the "carucate" or "team land," that is the area which one team of eight oxen could maintain in cultivation ; this in turn was sub-divided into eight "bovates," or "oxgangs," the latter term being universally used in Lancashire, and representing the proportion of a team land which the owner of one ox could maintain in tillage. A man was not always the happy possessor of an ox, sometimes he held only a share with one or more neighbours. The oxgang contained from five to twenty-five acres, according to circumstances of soil or surface (average about fifteen or sixteen acres), and each was sub-divided into numerous strips, perhaps twenty, perhaps one hundred, according to the number of the tillers of the soil in the township, who each held at least one strip in every field or furlong. The object was to equalize and give to each person a fair proportion of good, bad, or indifferent soil. The various town-fields were cultivated on a two years' course, or three years' course of tillage, and the cattle on the surrounding common had free access to those fields which lay fallow during the year, as they also had access to the meadow land after Lammas, and to the cornfields after the harvest had been gathered.

By this means not only was a large area kept in cultivation by a comparatively small number of plough teams, but every available acre of arable—until seed time—was made available for pasturage. The Lancashire acre generally appears to have contained forty roods in length (forty-long = furlong), and four roods in breadth, each rood measuring twenty feet. (Stainall, No. 4, p. 115.) The Lancashire customary acre, therefore, contained 7,111 square yards and one square foot.

It is evident from the Ordnance Survey Maps that there were formerly very large areas of common pasture, mosses, moors, wastes and meres in many Lancashire townships of the 13th to the 16th centuries, affording almost unlimited scope for improvements. We therefore find frequent mention of improved or assarted land (assartum, scalinga, terra approviata), which might be made on the commons and wastes by the lord's villeins, or by the free tenants of the township; and so apart from the townlands (terra, terra arabilis, et pratum), consisting of ancient arable and meadow, the area under tillage was constantly being added to, the rode-land or assarted arable land being a continually increasing quantity. Consequently the Domesday measurement gradually ceased to represent the real area under tillage. Every family occupied a toft or small homestead with its croft, orchard, garden or curtilage, sometimes containing one, sometimes two acres. (Stainall, No. 6, p. 116; Sowerby, p. 244.)

The head of cattle, horses, sheep, &c., to be put by any one individual on the common pasture was rigidly "stinted" or limited, so that each villager had a rateable amount of pasture, i.e., he was allowed to keep a strictly limited number of horses, cattle, sheep, pigs, or goats, in proportion to his area of tillage and meadow. This was sometimes expressed in the charters of gift to the Abbey, by a specific number of such stock, or covered by the words "the common rights or liberties appurtenant to such and such a fee in that town." In every township there were well regulated liberties and easements as to housebote and haybote, turf getting, bracken dales, rights of way, rights of water, fishing rights, or share of the mast fall, and others.

The land was generally tilled by villeins, who with their families, goods, and cattle were attached to the soil (Whittingham, No. 4, p. 232). But there was a numerous class of small freeholders springing up, who were often benefactors to the Abbey. These usually tilled their own land and occupied their own homesteads or messuages, like the Westmorland yeoman or "Statesman" of to-day.

The increase in the purchasing power of money tended to bring about a change in the position of the villein class. Instead of exacting the customary day-works on the demesne, the lord found it to his advantage pecuniarily, to commute such service for money payment, and instead of treating his villeins as chattels, to accept a rent (which tended to increase in amount), and make them his free-men and tenants-at-will of the oxgangs they had formerly cultivated in servility. It was better economy to take a money rent, and let the tenants-at-will keep themselves, than to be responsible for their food, clothing, crop and stock in return for villein service. So the villeins of the Abbey, given with the land they tilled in the 13th century, rise in status, and in process of time appear on the rent-rolls, as the tenants at will of the Abbey, paying boon hens and a rent in money.

It will be noticed from the addition of the word "dominicum," that by far the greater proportion of the gifts made to the Abbey, consisted of land which passed into the hands of the monks, and was tilled by the villeins or dependents of the Abbey as part of the demesne land. A list occupying six pages of the Chartulary, gives the names of the villeins attached to the lands of the Abbey. In another class, where the word "feodum" appears in the margin, the gift was merely that of the fee farm, from which the Abbey derived a fee farm rent, with wardship and relief of the actual tenant in possession. Sometimes the grant was not in frankalmoign (Stainall, No. 12, p. 119), but the monks were required to discharge the military, thanage, or fee farm service to the chief lord, under which the grantor—a mesne tenant—held. Again, others were testamentary grants to secure burial for the grantor or his wife in the precincts of the Abbey (Presteall, No. 8, p. 70). Sometimes prayers and other spiritual benefits were to be received for the grant. Again, some sold to the monks a portion of their land from personal necessity for money. (Medlar, Nos. 7 and 8, p. 172; Thistleton, No. 4, p. 174.) Poulton, No. 1, p. 189, affords an instance of a grant by way of composition for one-third of the grantor's and his wife's substance at their death, which was due to the Abbey of Cockersand under the servile tenure, by which they held their land.

Towards the end of the 13th century the area of land held in many townships in frankalmoign was sufficiently large to enable the monks to split up their holding into tenements, first of all tilled by the villeins belonging to the Abbey, but in later times let upon lease. This is evident from the 15th century rent rolls of the Abbey, several of which are in existence.

It seems to have been a very common practice with the monks to put up stone crosses, or to mark trees with a cross, to distinguish the boundaries of their land. To a great extent the boundaries were natural objects, such as streams, brooks, sykes or leaches, roads, woods, moors, &c. The strips of land in the townfields were simply divided by ridges or balks of turf, as in many Highland townfields of to-day in Scotland. They are usually described as lying between land of the two adjacent possessors, whose names are given, and as extending at either end to some specific boundary. The ownership of every one of the scores of such similar strips was common knowledge in every village. Many of the open fields were called "furlongs," the nature of the ground no doubt admitting a length of furrow "forty long," as measured in customary rods; to others the ancient Teutonic term of "argh" was applied, with the addition in each instance of some distinctive and descriptive title, such as "Harecarr furlong," "Moor-furlong," and "Middle-eargh," now "Medlar." The philologist will find plenty of materials for the study of the origin of local place names.

Of the Abbots of Cockersand little seems to be known, and the Register adds little to the knowledge to be gained from the Public Records. The following list of names, with references, contains several additions to that given by Whitaker (Hist. of Richmond, vol. ii. p. *335), or the fuller list given by J. P. Rylands, F.S.A. The Editor's acknowledgments are due to the Very Rev. Canon MOYES, D.D., for invaluable assistance in the translation of the Papal Bulls, for collating the "Constitutio Provincialis Ebor." with two M.S. copies in the British Museum, and for a translation and numerous interesting notes thereon.

The Society is indebted to THOMAS BROOKS Esq., F.S.A., of Armitage Bridge, Huddersfield, for the loan of the original Register.

The Latin text has been carefully collated with the Register, and all errors reproduced. The labour of transcribing and extending the text has been considerably increased by the preparation of a short translation or abstract of each document. It is hoped that this addition will be a welcome feature to those unfamiliar with the Latin of legal instruments. For errors in the extension of the original text, in translation, and in the use of unsuitable terms, the Editor desires the reader's indulgence.

31. H. 3.
IN hoc volumine continentur omnia feofamenta nostra penes nos reperta Anno Domini Millesimo Ducentesimo sexagesimo septimo, Quæ scripta sunt et ordinata a fratre Roberto de Lacheford, Qui præsens volumen tam pro utilitate juniorum instrumenta ignorancium, quam difficultate ea querencium quæ sæpius eveniunt, armariolo assignavit. In principio privilegia nostra communia et propria scribens. Postea cartas et Confirmaciones Domini Regis. Tandem Confirmaciones Baronum et magnatum, illis dumtaxat exceptis quæ suis in provinciis plenius ut decet annotantur. Sequntur cartæ de Aumundernesse ; Postea cartæ de Laylondsyre ; et de Blakeburnesyre ; et de Eboraco ; item de Derbysyre ; et de Makerfeld ; item de Salfordsyre ; et de Cestrisyre ; item postea de Llonnesdale ; et de Kendale ; et tandem in fine libelli sequntur illæ de Coupeland. Assignata sunt loca et prætermissa vacua in fine cujusque villæ uniuscujusque provinciæ ; ut decetero quandocumque vel quocienscumque novæ cartæ, confirmaciones, composicionesque evenerint : competenter inseri poterunt. Orat etiam ipse compositor propter communem utilitatem, ut quandocumque largacione aliquorum aut empacione facultatis communis aliquæ evenerint, aut aliquo casu repertæ fuerint, quæ istis temporibus non fuerunt: in posterum suis locis inserantur. Scripta sunt hæc Anno Domini millesimo ducentesimo, sexagesimo octavo, ante festum sancti Michaelis Archangeli.

IN this volume are contained all the grants of land found in our possession in the year of our Lord 1267. They have been arranged and written down by brother Robert de Lachford, who has consigned them to a little chest, as well for the use of the younger [brethren] ignorant as to legal documents, as by reason of the difficulty which often happens to those making a search among them. At the beginning, writing down our privileges ordinary and particular, next the Royal Charters and Confirmations, then the Confirmations of barons and great men, those only excepted which are more fully set down, as it behoves, under their own districts, then follow the charters of Amounderness, next those of Leylandshire, Blackburnshire, York, [West] Derbyshire, Makerfield, Salfordshire, Cheshire, also Lonsdale and Kendal, and then at the end the titles of Copeland follow. Places have been allotted, and blanks left at the end of each town of every district, so that hereafter, whenever and as often as new charters, confirmations, or agreements occur, they may be suitably introduced. The compiler himself begs, for the sake of general convenience, that whenever any [charters] shall be acquired, either by the bounty of any or by purchase of the ordinary faculty, or otherwise shall be found, which do not at present exist, that they be finally introduced in their proper places. These [words] were written in the year of our Lord 1268, before the feast of St. Michael the Archangel.¹

¹ These introductory remarks, left by the compiler, explain the reason why various blank spaces occur throughout the volume and the later entries in various handwritings. The compilation of the volume was continued long after Latchford's time, but not with the order and neatness which characterise his entries. The grants made in or before the year 1268 are easily distinguishable from the subsequent entries by the regularity of the calligraphy, and from the fact that the initial letters of the original entries are rubricated.

BULL OF PROTECTION AND PRIVILEGES BY POPE CLEMENT III., TO THE PRIOR AND BRETHREN OF THE HOSPITAL OF COCKERSAND, AND CONFIRMATION OF ALL GRANTS AND LIBERTIES MADE TO THEM, WITH EXEMPTION FROM THE PAYMENT OF TITHES OF THE PRODUCE OF NEW LANDS BROUGHT UNDER CULTIVATION BY THEMSELVES.

CLEMENT, bishop, servant of the servants of God, to our beloved sons H[ugh?], Prior of the Monastery of the Hospital of Cockersand, and the brethren there, present and to come, professed to perpetual regular observance. As often as that which is asked of us is found to be in harmony with justice and religion, it behoves us to grant the same with a willing mind, and give due consent to the petitioners' desires. Therefore, my sons, beloved in the Lord, graciously assenting to your rightful petitions, we have taken the monastery of the blessed mother of God, and always Virgin Mary, wherein ye are devoted to the service of God, into the blessed St. Peter's and our own protection, and by the ordinance of these presents do firmly establish you. In the first place we ordain that the regular order, which according to God and the rule of the blessed Augustine and the institutions of the Premonstratensian brethren, is known to be founded in that place, shall there be inviolably maintained for ever. Moreover, whatsoever possessions and goods the monastery justly and canonically possesses at the present, or hereafter may acquire by the grant of Pontiffs, the bounty of kings and nobles and the offerings of the faithful, or by other just means, God helping, shall remain firm and unimpaired to you and your successors. Among which we deemed it right that the following should be described by their particular names. That place on which the monastery is built, together with all churches, chapels, and their appurtenances, lands, waters, woods and plains, meadows and pastures, mills and fisheries, salt pits and fishing boats, to the said place given and granted, Croc up to the great pool, with reclaimed patches of land in Wyresdale, all the easements for the said house within the liberty in William de Lancaster's wood; Northcroft, Hengarth, Cuncough, with common rights and all the liberties in Melling; land in Eccleston; land and tithe of the mill in Charnock, as described by charters; one oxgang of land in Carleton, with common rights and ; one oxgang of land in Stainall with the appurtenances; small parcels of land in the other Stainall, with the messuages and appurtenances; one oxgang of land in Leck with the appurtenances; four acres of land in Kirkby Lonsdale; twenty-four acres of land in Hutton Roof; seventeen acres of land in Hilderston, with common rights in Yealand; land and meadow in Beetham, that is four acres; a salt pit with easements in Meathop; one assart in Preston in Kendal; and another assart in the other Preston; two acres of land in Strickland; one acre in Freckleton with the appurtenances; two burgages and the land thereunto appurtenant in Preston in Amounderness; one assart in Brockholes according to the boundaries; two assarts in Cockerham with all appurtenances; three acres of land in Thorp with common rights; two acres of land in Bretherton; one acre of land in Heysham with an orchard and garden and all easements; one acre of land in Hurleston with easements; six acres of land in Seaton in Copeland with common rights of that town; one acre in Walton in Cartmel with all the appurtenances, and the fourth part of one oxgang in Lea. Of the produce of cultivation which you raise by your own hands or at your own charges, or of the cattle which you breed, none shall presume to demand or extort tithe from you. It is permitted to you to receive clergy or laity free and discharged from secular obligations¹ betaking themselves to your observance, and to keep them without the gainsay of any. Moreover, we forbid that any of your brethren be allowed to withdraw from the monastery after having taken the habit in that place, and anyone withdrawing without the warrant of common letters,² let no one dare to retain [in his house].³ Further, we make a decree that no one shall dare commit any violence, rapine, theft, or incendiарism within the enclosures of your places or granges, or rashly seize or kill any man. Moreover, we ordain that burial be free in that place, that no one may interfere with the devotion and last wish of any who have chosen it as their place of burial, unless they be excommunicated or under interdict, saving nevertheless the right of those churches from which the bodies of the deceased are taken. But when there shall be a general interdict of the country, it shall be permitted you to celebrate the divine offices, but so it be with hushed voice and doors closed against the excommunicated and interdicted crowd. In the parish churches which ye have, ye shall be permitted to choose priests and present them to the Bishop, and if they be fit persons, he shall commit to them the cure of souls; it shall be their duty to answer to him concerning spiritual matters, but to you concerning temporal. Moreover, we forbid any to dare publish in your monastery a sentence of interdict, or among the brethren, clerks or lay-brotheren, of suspension or excommunication, without reasonable and manifest cause. Further, we utterly forbid any novel or undue proceedings to be taken by Archbishops, Bishops, Archdeacons, Deans, or other ecclesiastical persons. Furthermore, if anyone lay violent hands upon any of your brethren, he shall be denounced and excommunicated, none shall presume to absolve him, until he be brought into the apostolic presence furnished with letters of his Diocesan containing the truth of the matter, unless in urgent peril of death he shall have made suitable amends. In the desire to provide for your peace and security, we strictly forbid anyone to summon you to civil tribunals, but if anyone shall consider that he has cause for an action at law against you, he shall have free opportunity to proceed before an ecclesiastical judge. In your own suits, also, involving either a civil or a criminal question, ye shall be permitted to employ the evidence of your brethren, lest for default of witnesses your right be in anywise lost. Moreover, we firmly decree by these presents, that the liberties and immunities rightly to the said place granted by kings and nobles, and especially by William de Lancaster, the founder of your house, and by other persons as well ecclesiastical as lay, and reasonable customs hitherto observed, shall remain whole and undiminished [to you and your successors]. Chrism and holy oil, consecrations of altars and churches, ordinations of clerics who are to be promoted to sacred orders, you will obtain from the bishop of the diocese, provided that he be a catholic, and enjoy the favour and communion of the apostolic See, and be willing to confer the same gratuitously and without fault; otherwise you shall have recourse to any other bishop whom you may prefer, and he empowered by our authority shall bestow what is asked. At your decease, now Prior of that place, and at the decease of each of your successors, no one shall be appointed by stealthy cunning or by violence, but only he whom the brethren by general consent, or those of sounder purpose among them, shall set forth for election, in accordance with the fear of God and the rule of the blessed Augustine. We accordingly decree that it shall be utterly forbidden to any of mankind to recklessly harass the said monastery, to carry away its possessions or to retain or diminish aught taken away, or to trouble it by any manner of vexation, but all things shall be preserved unimpaired for the manifold use of those for whose government and maintenance they have been granted. Saving the authority of the apostolic See and the canonical rights of the diocesan bishop. If therefore hereafter any ecclesiastical or secular person, knowing this our letter of constitution, shall attempt rashly to contravene the same, unless after being warned a second and a third time, he amend his state of guilt by suitable satisfaction, he shall be deprived of his power, rank, and dignity, and shall know that he is guilty in the eyes of God of the evil that he hath committed, and shall be outcast from the most holy body and blood of our Lord God and Saviour Jesus Christ, and shall in the last judgment be partaker of extreme punishment. The peace of our Lord Jesus Christ be upon all in that place who shall maintain its rights. While here they shall reap the fruit of good deeds, and hereafter before the last Judge obtain the reward of everlasting peace. Amen.

in hiis ecclesiis quas instituit, sed eciam in omnibus aliis ejusdem ordinis, et dignitatem et officium patris obtineat, et ei ab omnibus tam abbatibus quam fratribus, debita patri obedientia in pendatur. Præterea, omnes abbates ordinis vestri singulis annis ad Generale Capitulum Præmonstratense, postposita omni occasione convenient, illis solis exceptis, quos a labore viæ corporis retardaverit infirmitas, qui tamen idoneum pro se [fol. 9] delegare debebunt nuncium, per quem necessitas et causa remoracionis suæ Capitulo valeat nunciari. Hi autem qui in remotioribus partibus habitantes, sine gravi difficultate singulis annis se ne quiverint Capitulo præsentare: in eo termino convenient, qui in ipso eis Capitulo fuerit constitutus. Si verò quilibet abbatum vel præpositorum per contumaciam vestrum Capitulum frequentare desiverit: liceat abbati Præmonstratensi, consilio sui Capituli, eos usque ad dignam satisfactionem sentencia percellere regulari, et summam quam præfatus Præmonstratensis abbas sive in Generali Capitulo, sive extra Capitulum consilio coabatuum, in prelatos et subditos tocius ordinis vestri canonice tulerit: nulli archiepiscoporum seu episcoporum, nisi forte de mandato Romani pontificis, liceat relaxare. In Generali igitur vestro Capitulo, præsidente abbe Præmonstratensi, ceterisque considentibus et in spiritu Dei cooperantibus, de hiis quæ ad ædificationem animarum, ad instructionem morum, et ad informacionem vertutum atque incrementum regularis disciplinæ spectabunt, sermo diligens habeatur. Porrò de omnibus quæstionibus et querellis tam spiritualibus quam temporalibus quæ in ipso Capitulo propositæ fuerint, illud teneatur irrefragabiliter et servetur quod abbas Præmonstratensis, cum hiis qui sanctoris consilii et magis idonei apparuerint, justè ac providè judicabit. Sanè si abbas aliquis ordinis vestri infamis vel inutilis, aut ordinis sui prævaricator inventus fuerit, et prius per priorem suum abbatem, aut per nuncios ejus ammonitus suum corrigere et emendare delictum neglexerit, aut cedere si amovendus fuerit, sponte noluerit auctoritate Capituli Generalis deponatur, et depositus, sine dilaclione ad domum unde exivit, seu ad aliam ejusdem ordinis quam elegerit, sine ulla condicione temporalis comodi revertatur, in obediencia abbatis sicut ceteri fratres ipsius domus firmiter permansurus. Id ipsum eciam alio tempore, si necesse fuerit, et Capitulum sine scandalo vel periculo exspectari nequiverit: per abbatem Præmonstratensem et priorem abbatem et alios abbates quos vocaverit fieri licebit. Quod si depositus in se datæ sententiæ contumaciter contraire temptaverit: tam ipse quam principales ejus, qui de ordine vestro fuerint, in sua contumacia fautores ab abate Præmonstratensi et ceteris abbatibus censura ecclesiastica donec satisfaciant arceantur. Verum¹ cum aliqua ecclesiarum vestrarum abbate proprio fuerit destituta, vel cum ibi abbatis electio regulariter non fuerit celebrata, sub prioris abbatis potestate ac disposicione consistat, et cum ejusdem consilio qui elegendus fuerit a canonicis eligatur. Electo autem fratres ecclesiæ statim obedienciam promittant, qui non quin absolutus a potestate prioris abbatis vel ordinis sui, archiepiscopo vel episcopo in cuius diocesi fuerit præsentetur, plenitudinem ab eo officii percepturus, ita tamen quod post factam archiepiscopo vel episcopo suo proffessionem, occasione illa non transgrediatur constitutiones ordinis sui [fol. 9^b.] nec in aliquo ejus prævaricator existat. Siquis eciam ex vobis canonicè electus in abbatem, diocesano episcopo semel et iterum per abbates vestrí ordinis præsentatus, benedictionem ab eo non potuerit obtinere: ne ecclesia ad quam vocatus est destituta consilio, periclitetur officio, et loco abbatis plenariè secundum ordinem fungatur in ea, tam in exterioribus providendis quam in interioribus corregendis, donec aut interventu Generalis Capituli vestrí aut precepto Romani pontificis seu metropolitani, benedictionem suam obtineat. aut aliquod aliud a vobis exigere, nullus vestrorum eciam si exigatur, dare præsumat, quia et exigentem et dantem nota et periculum simoniacæ pravitatis involvit. Ceterum si aliqua ecclesiarum vestrarum pastoris solacio destituta, inter fratres de substituendo abbate discordia fuerit, vel scissura suborta, et ipsi facilè ad concordiam vel unitatem revocari nequierint: pater abbas consilio coabbatum suorum eis idoneam provideat personam, et illi eum sine contradictione recipient in abbatem, quem si recipere contempserint, sentenciæ subjaceant quam pater abbas cum consilio coabbatum suorum in eos duxerit auctoritate ordinis promulgandum.¹ Ad hæc quoniam Præmonstratensis ecclesia prima mater est omnium ecclesiarum tocius ordinis, et patrem super se alium non habet, sicut ad cautelam et custodiam ordinis statutum est per tres primos abbates; Laudunensi, Florefiensi, Cusiacensi annua ibidem visitacio fiat, et si quid in ipsa domo corrigendum fuerit, absque majori per eos audiencia corrigatur. Quod si abbas in corrigendo tepidus, et fratres sæpius moniti incorrigibiles permanserint: ad Generale Capitulum referatur, et sicut melius visum fuerit, consilio Capituli Generalis emendetur. Et sentencia in hac parte Capituli sine retractacione aliqua observetur. Quociens verò ecclesia Præmonstratensis sine abbatे fuerit, ad præfatos tres abbates ejus cura respiciat, et a canonicis ipsius ecclesiæ cum eorum consilio persona in abbatem idonea eligatur, ad consilium suum quatuor aliis abbatibus ad eandem ecclesiam pertinentibus peritis advocatis, quos ipsi canonici providerint advocandos. Liceat quoque unicuique matri ecclesiæ ordinis vestri, cum consilio abbatis Præmonstratensis de abbatibus ecclesiarum quæ ab ea processisse noscuntur, sive eciam de alia ejusdem ordinis inferiore ecclesia, sibi quemcumque voluerit si tamen idoneus extiterit, in abbatem assumere. Quia verò singula quæ ad religionis profectum et animarum salutem ordinastis, præsenti abbreviacioni nequiverunt annexi, nos cum hiis quæ præscripta sunt consuetudines vestras quas inter vos religionis intuitu regulariter statuistis, et deinceps auctore domino statuetis: auctoritate apostolica roboramus, et vobis vestrisque successoribus et omnibus qui ordinem vestrum professi fuerint, perpetuis temporibus inviolabiliter decernimus observandas, nec aliquæ litteræ habeant firmitatem quæ tacito nomine Præmonstratensis ordinis, contra libertates vobis ab apostolica sede indultas fuerint inpetratæ. Sanè laborum [fol. 10^b.] vestrorum quos propriis manibus aut sumptibus colitis de possessiōnibus habitis ante Concilium Generale, sive de ortis et virgultis, pratis, pascuis, et piscacionibus vestris vel de nutrimentis animallium vestrorum, seu eciam de novalibus, nullus a vobis decimas exigere vel extorquere præsumat. Interdicimus verò episcopis et aliis ecclesiarum prælatis, nisi servato evectionis numero in Lateranensi Concilio constituto, in vestris monasteriis hospitari. Ad grangias autem vestras et ad curtes hospitandi gratia, non nisi in magna necessitate divertant, et tunc contenti sint ipsarum mansionum cibariis consuetis cum honestate atquæ caritate exhibitis. Nulli autem seculari personæ vel ecclesiasticæ in aliqua domorum vestrarum liceat carnibus vesci, nisi manifestæ ægritudinis causa, et hoc in solis monasteriis conventionalibus vestris. Prohibemus insuper ne aliqua persona fratres ordinis vestri audeat ad secularia judicia provocare, sed si quis adversus eos aliquid sibi crediderit de jure competere: sub ecclesiastici examine judicii experiendi habeat facultatem. Licitum præterea vobis sit, in causis vestris fratres vestros idoneos ad testificandum adducere, et eorum testimonio sicut rectum fuerit, et propulsare: violenciam, et justiciam vendicare. Prohibemus quoque ne cuilibet ecclesiasticæ vel seculari personæ fas sit in ecclesiis vestris contra statuta Lateranensis Concilii, tallias excrettere vel quaslibet alias vobis ineptas et iniqüas exactiones inponere.

GENERAL BULL BY POPE HONORIUS III. TO THE ABBOT OF PRÉMONTRÉ AND ALL OTHER ABBOTS AND MONKS OF THE PREMONSTRATENSIAN ORDER, GRANTING NUMEROUS PRIVILEGES FOR THE BENEFIT, AND ORDINANCES FOR THE GOVERNMENT OF THE ORDER.

HONORIUS, bishop, servant of the servants of God, to our beloved sons, the Abbot of Prémontré, and to the other abbots and monks of the Premonstratensian order, present and to come, professed to perpetual regular observance. Placed albeit unworthily, by God's disposition in the eminent throne of the apostolic See, we are bound to be solicitous for the well-being of all, and have the duty of cherishing whatever pertains to the growth of religion or concerns the adornment of truth, so that the peace of those professing religion may be kept secure from disturbance, and untrammelled by the yoke of earthly oppression, when fortified by the apostolic protection. Considering therefore how your order and observance, reflecting the rich splendour of merit and diffusing the odour of sanctity, has spread forth its branches from sea to sea, we have decided that the order and all the houses of the order shall be cherished by the aid of apostolic protection, and fortified by this present letter of privilege. Therefore my sons, beloved in the Lord, benignly assenting to your just petitions, after the example of Alexander,¹ Lucius,² Urban,³ Clement,⁴ and Innocent,⁵ our predecessors in the Roman pontificate, of happy memory, we strengthen by apostolic authority all the regular institutions and rules, which ye have made by general consent or that of the major and wiser part, as herein-after specified, and by the privilege of these presents we have firmly established, to wit, that the monastic order recognized as instituted in the white habit, in the church of Prémontré, according to the rule of the blessed Augustine and the institutes of Norbert, of memory ever to be renewed, founder of the Premonstratensian order, and of his successors, shall be preserved inviolably for all time by the churches of that order, and those observances wholly, and those books belonging to the divine offices, shall be uniformly observed by the whole order, nor shall any church or person of your order dare request any privilege contrary to the general institutes of your order, or if obtained, in anywise dare to retain them. And none of the churches shall impose any claim of earthly advantage¹ upon her whom she has begotten, but the father abbot² shall have the care of the growth of the filial abbot and brethren of that house, and power according to the order, to correct whatsoever he shall perceive therein to require correction, and they, as to a father, shall humbly and faithfully show him filial reverence. But, the abbot of the church of Prémontré, which is recognized as the mother of the others, shall have the dignity and duty of a father not only in the churches which he founded, but also in all others of that order, and the obedience due to a parent shall be observed towards him by all, both abbots and brethren. Moreover all the abbots of your order shall assemble each year at the General Premonstratensian Chapter, setting aside every contingency, those only excepted whom bodily infirmity may render unfit for the hardships of the journey; and they for all that shall duly appoint a fit delegate in their place, who shall fully declare to the Chapter the circumstance and cause of the detention. But those dwelling in distant places who could not present themselves yearly to the Chapter without great difficulty, shall assemble in the term, which shall be appointed them in that Chapter. And if any of your abbots or guardians contumaciously cease from attending your Chapter, it will be allowable for the abbot of Prémontré by the advice of his Chapter, to impel them to make due satisfaction by a regular judgment, and the amount which the said abbot of Prémontré shall canonically levy, either within the General Chapter or without, by the advice of his fellow abbots, upon the prelates and substitutes of the whole order, no archbishop, or bishop, except by the mandate of the Roman Pontiff, shall be permitted to relax. Accordingly in your General Chapter, the abbot of Prémontré presiding, and the others gathered around in the spirit of God harmoniously working together, earnest discourse shall be held concerning the things which belong to the edification of souls, the strengthening of morals, the cultivation of virtue, and the promotion of regular observance. Furthermore concerning all enquiries and disputes, as well spiritual as temporal, which shall be brought before the Chapter, that shall be irrefragably kept and observed, which the abbot of Prémontré, with those of wiser and more apt judgment, shall rightly and prudently decide. But if any abbot of your order be found of ill repute or unprofitable, or a prevaricator of his order, and having been admonished before by the prior abbot or by his delegates, neglect to correct and amend his offence, or if about to be removed, he refuse to retire of his own accord: he shall be deposed by the authority of the General Chapter, and he thus deposed shall forthwith return to the house whence he came, or to another house of the same order, which he might choose without any stipulation of temporal advantage, [there] strictly to remain in obedience to the abbot, just as the other brethren of that house. The same thing also shall be permitted to be done at another time,¹ if it be needful, and the meeting of the Chapter cannot be waited for without scandal or peril, by the abbot of Prémontré, and the prior abbot and other abbots whom he shall call together. But if, when deposed, he attempt contumaciously to resist the sentence upon him, both he and his principals, being of your order, and abettors of his obstinacy, shall be by the abbot of Prémontré and the other abbots, placed under ecclesiastical censure until they make amends. Now when any of your churches shall be deprived of its abbot, or when the election of an abbot be irregularly carried out, they shall stand under the authority and disposition of the prior abbot, and under his advice he who was to be chosen shall be elected by the monks; and being elected, the brethren of the church shall straightway profess obedience to him, and although not released from the authority of the prior abbot, or his order, he shall be presented to the archbishop or bishop of his diocese, to receive from him the fullness of his authority; so it be, however, that having made his profession to the archbishop or bishop, he shall not by virtue thereof transgress the constitutions of his order, nor in anywise become a prevaricator thereof. And if any one of you, being canonically chosen abbot and once and again presented by the abbots of your order to the bishop of the diocese, shall be unable to obtain benediction from him, [then] lest the church to which he has been called remain deprived of guidance, and imperilled in its work, he shall, in the position of abbot, according to the rule, fully discharge therein the office, by caring for external affairs and ordering internal matters, until by the intervention of the General Chapter, or the direction of the Roman Pontiff or Metropolitan, he obtain his benediction. Moreover, no ecclesiastical person shall presume to demand from you any reward for chrism or for consecrations and ordinations, or for burial or palfrey or other [lucre] for the benediction of an abbot or inducting one into his chair; if demanded, none of you shall presume to give anything, for the note and the peril of simoniacal depravity envelope both receiver and giver. But if discord and division arise among the brethren in any of your churches deprived of the solace of a pastor, concerning the appointment of an abbot, and they should not be easily recalled to peace and unity; the father abbot by the advice of his fellow abbots, shall provide them with a fit person, and they without gainsay shall receive him as their abbot, but if they refuse to receive him, they shall incur the judgment which father abbot, by the advice of his fellow abbots, and the authority of the order, shall deeme it well to promulgate against them. Furthermore, because the church of Prémontré is the chief mother of all the churches of the whole order, and has no other parent over her, according to the ordinance of the three prior abbots of Laon, made for the security and safeguard of the order, at Laon, Floreffe, and Quissac, shall a yearly visitation be made, and if aught in that house need amendment, it shall be corrected by them without further hearing. And if the abbot be lukewarm in making correction, and the brethren, being oftentimes admonished, continue in their perversity, the matter shall be referred to the General Chapter, and amendment shall be made as shall seem best, by the advice of the General Chapter, and their judgment in that behalf shall be observed without any withdrawal. Now whenever any Premonstratensian church shall be without abbot, the charge thereof shall devolve upon the aforesaid three abbots, and a fit person shall, with their advice, be elected as abbot by the monks of that church,—four other experienced abbots, whom the monks themselves shall designate, being associated with their council. It will be allowable for each mother church, with the advice of the abbot of Prémontré, to take as her abbot any one whom she may choose of the abbots of the churches which have sprung from her, or even from any other church of a lower degree in the same order, provided that he be a fitting person therefor. But a church of your order shall not choose as their abbot any person of another order, nor shall any person of your order be appointed abbot of any other order except by authority of the Roman Church. None shall be permitted to receive your monks or lay-brethren, or having received, to retain them, without the licence of the abbots. Assuredly it shall not be permitted to any member of a church of your order by any manner of presumption to transfer himself to any other order. But if any churches of another order of canons shall come to the church of your order, let them without any difficulty receive that consideration by which they are esteemed to have joined your order. Moreover, if any dispute about temporal matters arise between any of the churches of your order, an ecclesiastical or secular hearing shall not be required outside the order, but by the intervention of the abbot of Prémontré and others summoned by him, it shall either be settled in a friendly manner between them, or after both parties have been heard, the dispute shall be decided by a just judgment. For the better preservation of the peace of your order, we strictly forbid any of your prelates or subjects to presume to appeal against the things which belong to the discipline and constitution of the order, as decreed in the Lateran Council, but if any attempt an appeal, they whom it concerns shall nevertheless duly maintain the regular discipline. Again, seeing that ye love peace and quiet, far removed from the noise and tumult of the world, we firmly decree that your granges and courts, as also your church porches, shall be free from the inroad and violence of evil doers, and we prohibit anyone daringly to seize, despoil, beat or slay, any man, or to commit any robbery or pillage therein. To avoid the gathering together of secular crowds it shall be permitted to you, saving the right of diocesan bishops, to erect oratories in your granges and courts, therein, when need arise, to celebrate the divine offices for yourselves and your household, and to receive your attendants,¹ unless some have their own abodes in the neighbourhood, to confession, communion, and burial, with the consideration due to your order. It shall also be permitted to you to receive individuals who are free and discharged from secular authority, betaking themselves to your order, and to keep them with their goods without any gainsay. And the infirm, who, being absolved, have by their last wishes desired to be removed to you, or seek to be buried among you, none shall forbid, nor presume to withhold their lawful possessions, saving only the lawful portion belonging to their heirs, and the canonical dues of the churches from whom the bodies of the deceased have been taken. For the greater respect of your order and observance of your regular discipline, we confer upon you, beloved sons and abbots, the full power of binding and loosing those who are under your jurisdiction. And because each individual thing which ye have ordained for the advantage of religion and the salvation of souls cannot be inserted in this present abridgment, we have confirmed by apostolic authority, together with these already prescribed, the customs which, for the benefit of religion ye have regularly established and hereafter by divine assistance shall establish, and we have decreed that they shall be inviolably and for all time observed by you and your successors and by all who profess your order, nor shall any letters have any force, which, omitting the name of the Premonstratensian order, shall be obtained contrary to the liberties which have been granted to you by the Apostolic See.

None shall presume to exact or extort tithes from you for the produce of cultivation which you raise by your own hands or at your own charges, for possessions acquired before the time of the General Council, or from orchards and fruit gardens, meadows, pastures, or fishings, or from the cattle which you raise, or also for newly broken ground. We forbid bishops and other prelates to receive hospitality in your monasteries, except in accordance with the number of suite regulated by the Lateran Council. They shall not turn aside to your granges and courts for the sake of entertainment unless in great need, and then they shall be satisfied with the customary food of the farm houses becomingly and affectionately set before them. But no secular or ecclesiastical persons shall be permitted to eat flesh in any of your houses, unless by reason of evident sickness, and this only in your conventional monasteries. We further forbid any person to dare to drag the brethren of your order before secular judges, and if anyone considers that he has a rightful action against them, he shall have authority to seek judgment before an ecclesiastical tribunal. Moreover, in your actions at law it shall be permitted you to produce your brethren fit to give evidence, and by their testimony, according to the truth, to repel violence and secure justice. And we forbid any ecclesiastical or lay person to levy taxes upon your churches contrary to the ordinances of the Lateran Council, or to lay any other improper or unjust exactions upon you. We also strictly enjoin upon you that ye presume not to take any wild beasts, birds, dogs, or any other animals of this sort of fancy from anyone to nurture or to keep, to the undoing of your order. Moreover, in order that ye may be able to serve God the more peacefully, and to preclude the need of your running to and fro, we have resolved by these presents to grant to you the indult that if your bishops either by maliciously causing delay or by reason of just impediment, fail to confer ordinations or other ecclesiastical ministrations upon you, and ye should happen to have some bishop with you as a visitor, of whose ordination and office ye shall have had full knowledge, you shall be free to receive ordinations and other sacraments at his hands, so it be, however, that there shall not arise thereby any prejudice to the rights of the bishop of the diocese. Moreover, being favourably inclined to your prayers, we have thought well by these presents to inhibit any archbishop, bishop, or their officers, from presuming to interdict or suspend your churches or the regular parsons thereof without manifest and reasonable cause, but if there be aught therein to amend, it shall be brought to the notice of the general Premonstratensian Chapter, and there in accordance with justice and truth, duly corrected.

And further, if any bishops or their officers publish a sentence against your persons or churches, contrary to the liberties granted to them by us or our predecessors, we decree that the sentence shall be annulled, as delivered contrary to the concessions of the Apostolic See. We accordingly decree that it shall be utterly forbidden to any person whomsoever to audaciously harass the said monastery, to carry away its possessions or to retain or diminish aught taken away, or to trouble it by any manner of vexations. But all things shall be preserved entire to be used for the benefit in all ways of those for whose government and maintenance they were granted : saving the authority of the Apostolic See. If therefore hereafter any ecclesiastical or secular person, knowing this our letter of constitution, shall attempt rashly to contravene the same, and having been warned a second and a third time,¹ he amend not his guilt by suitable satisfaction, he shall be deprived of the dignity of his power and rank, and shall know himself to be guilty by divine judgment of the evil that he hath committed, and shall be outcast from the most holy body and blood of our Lord God and Saviour Jesus Christ, and shall in the last judgment be in peril of extreme punishment. The peace of our Lord Jesus Christ be upon all in that place who shall maintain its rights. While here they shall reap the fruit of good deeds, and hereafter before the severe judge they shall obtain the reward of everlasting peace. Amen.

Given at the Lateran, by the hand of Ranerius, vice-chancellor of the holy Roman Church, on the fifth of the Ides of May, the sixth Indiction, the year of the Incarnation of our Lord, 1217, and of the pontificate of Pope Honorius III. the third year [11th May, A.D. 1217].

BULL BY POPE HONORIUS III. TO THE ABBOT OF PRÉMONTRÉ AND OTHER ABBOTS OF THE PREMONSTRATENSIAN ORDER, INHIBITING
THE EXACTION OF TITHES OF THE PRODUCE OF NEW LANDS BROUGHT INTO CULTIVATION BY THEIR MONKS, AND DEPRECATING
THE FALSE INTERPRETATION OF THE ORDINANCES OF THE GENERAL COUNCIL CONCERNING TITHES.

Honorius, bishop, servant of the servants of God, to his beloved sons the Abbot of Prémontre and all others his fellow abbots and brethren subject to him, health and apostolic benediction. It has sometimes happened that certain persons, seeking by their own interests, and finding that the lawful meaning of charters cannot be accommodated to their personal wishes, introduce therein a spurious meaning for their temporal gain, putting aside the fear of their eternal loss. For verily as we have heard, there are certain men overmuch devoted to their own opinion and self-constituted interpreters of the General Council, who are seeking to extort from you tithes of newly broken land acquired after the holding of that Council. Lest it should happen that ye be harassed by the undue molestation of these men, we have declared their interpretation to be foreign to the meaning of the constitution published by the said Council concerning Premonstratensian tithes. In open cases, however, let there be special care taken, as concerning lands which belonged to others, and only recently acquired. Let it be expressly provided that upon estates not your own, and those which you will acquire, if you cultivate them at your own labour and cost, you shall pay tithes to the churches, to which by reason of their lands, these have hitherto been paid; but if they overstep the clearly defined bounds of discretion, observing nevertheless from what newly broken lands the Apostolic See recognises indulgence to have been granted concerning such places dedicated to pious purposes, they shall not vex your souls concerning new lands with the quibble of a new interpretation. Therefore, by the authority of these presents we prohibit anyone from presuming to extort or demand any tithes from you upon new land brought under cultivation since the time of that Council, or hereafter to be brought under cultivation at your own costs and charges. It shall not be permitted to anyone to violate this our letter of inhibition, or rashly to dare contravene the same. If, however, anyone presume to make the attempt, he shall know that he will incur the displeasure of Almighty God and his blessed apostles Peter and Paul. Given at the Lateran, on the twelfth of the kalends of March, the third year of our Pontificate [18th February, A.D. 1218].

GREGORIUS, episcopus, servus servorum Dei, dilectis filiis abbati et Conventui Monasterii de Cokersand Præmonstratensis ordinis, salutem et apostolicam benedictionem. Cum a nobis petitur quod justum est et honestum tam vigor equitatis, quam ordo exigit racionis ut id per sollicitudinem officii nostri ad debitum perducatur effectum. stratensian order, health and apostolic benediction. When that which is just and right is asked of us, both the force of equity and the order of reason demand that by the solicitude of our office, that shall be brought to a due accomplishment. Therefore my sons, beloved in the Lord, assenting to your just prayers, we by apostolic authority have confirmed to you, and by this present letter establish under our protection unto you, and by you to the aforesaid monastery, the church of Garstang, with the chapels and appurtenances, delivered into your hands by our venerable brother the Archbishop of York, by the added consent of his Chapter, for your own uses, and the right of patronage thereof, which William de Lancaster, the patron thereof, formerly granted to your monastery in pious bounty, and all other your goods, as you rightly and peaceably enjoy the same. Therefore shall no man be permitted to violate this our letter of confirmation or rashly dare to contravene the same. But if anyone presume to attempt this, he shall know that he will incur the anger of Almighty God and his blessed apostles Peter and Paul. GREGORIUS, episcopus, servus servorum Dei, dilectis abbati Præmonstratensi ejusque coabbatis, et conventibus universis Præmonstratensis ordinis salutem et apostolicam benedictionem. Tenorem litterarum felicis recordacionis, Innocencii pape quarti prædecessoris nostri super declaracionem confectarum in ipsius regesto repertam sub bulla nostra de verbo ad verbum ad vestræ supplicationis instanciam annotari fecimus qui talis est.

Innocencius episcopus servus servorum Dei, dilectis filiis, Abbati Præmonstratensi ejusque coabbatis et conventibus universis Præmonstratensis ordinis salutem et apostolicam benedictionem. Virtute perspicuos sacri vestri ordinis professores, qui contemplacioni celestium ferventer invigilant, et piæ vitæ studio sine intermissione desudant, decet per apostolicæ circum-spectionis auxilium sic providè dirigi, ac sollicitè confoveri: ut alicujus prætextu calumpniæ nullum internæ pacis excidium, nullum religiosi status perferat detrimentum, sed in hiis robur et vigorem habeant per quæ circa cultum divini nominis devotis et quietis mentibus invalescant. Sanè in privilegio sedis apostolicæ ordini vestro concesso perspeximus contineri, quod¹ cum aliqua ecclesiarum vestrarum abbatे proprio fuerit destituta, vel cum ibi abbatis electio regulariter non fuerit celebrata: sub patris abbatis potestate ac dispositione consistat, ut cum ejusdem consilio, qui elegendus fuerit a canonicis eligatur. Electo autem fratres ecclesiæ statim obedienciam promittant, qui non quin absolutus a potestate patris abbatis vel ordinis sui, Archiepiscopo vel episcopo in cuius diocesi fuerit præsentetur: plenitudinem ab eo officii percepturus. Ita tamen quod post factam Archiepiscopo vel episcopo suo professionem, occasione illa non transgrediatur constituciones ordinis sui, nec in aliquo ejus prævaricator existat. Si quis autem ex vobis electus canonicè in abbatem, diocesano episcopo semel et iterum per abbates vestri ordinis præsentatus, benedictionem ab eo non poterit obtinere, ne ecclesia ad quam vocatus est destituta consilio periclitetur officio, et loco abbatis plenariè secundum ordinem fungatur in ea tam in exterioribus providendis, quam in interioribus corrigendis, donec aut interventu Generalis Capituli vestri, aut ex præcepto Romani pontificis, seu metropolitani benedictionem suam obtineat. Cum autem super hiis verbis et intellectu ipsorum sicut tu fili abbas coram nobis et fratribus nostris humiliter retulisti, a quibusdam ex vobis mens dubia et cor fluctuans haberetur, duxistis propter hoc ad sedis apostolicæ providenciam recurrentum, suppliciter postulantes, ut ipsa in hac parte pro quiete conscienciarum vestrarum et tranquillitate ordinis providere vobis per declaracionis remedium dignaretur. Nos itaque dictorum fratrum nostrorum communicato consilio, sic duximus declarandum: scilicet quod electus in abbatem post præstitam sibi juxta tenorem ipsius privilegii a fratribus obedienciam, diocesano per supradictos præsentetur abbates, ab ipso sine examinacione Monasterii curam, et benedictionis gratiam liberè percepturus, in quibus [fol. 12^b.] officii plenitudinem intelligimus contineri. Præsertim cum de intencione prædecessorum nostrorum qui ordini vestro prædictum privilegium concesserunt, non videatur fuisse, quod examinari a diocesano præsentatus sibi deberet electus, prout ex eo patet, quod si post factam examinacionem benedictionem negari contigerit, supervacuum videretur, obedienciam electo a fratribus præstitam extitisse, ac indecenter sibi fuisse concessum, quod benedictione negata, plenè fungeretur abbatis loco et officio, cum per hoc judex et actor in causa sua fieri videretur: sed si justè vel injustè diocesanus benedictionem hujusmodi denegaret, esset aliquibus hujusmodi causæ decisio committenda. Per hanc autem declaracionem nullum vobis et ordini vestro jus de novo adquiri volumus, nec alicui præjudicium generari. Nulli ergò omnino hominum liceat hanc paginam nostræ declaracionis infringere, vel ei ausu temerario contraire. Siquis autem hoc attemptare præsumpserit, indignationem omnipotentis Dei et beatorum Petri et Pauli apostolorum ejus se noverit incursum. Per hoc siquidem vobis et eidem ordini nullum novum intendimus jus adquiri. Datum apud Veterem Urbem, Idus Augusti, Pontificatus nostri anno primo.

EXTRACT FROM THE PAPAL REGISTER OF A BULL OF POPE INNOCENT IV.
TO THE PREMONSTRATENSIAN ORDER, DECLARING THE INTENDED
MEANING OF A CERTAIN CLAUSE IN THE BULL OF POPE HONORIUS TO BE, THAT UPON THE ELECTION OF AN ABBOT, THE DIOCESAN SHALL GRANT HIM BENEDICTION WITHOUT EXAMINATION.

Gregory, bishop, servant of the servants of God, to our beloved sons the Abbot of Prémontré, his fellow abbots, and all the convents of the Premonstratensian order, health and apostolic benediction. At the instance of your prayers we have caused the tenour of Letters of Pope Innocent IV., of happy memory, our predecessor, upon the evidence of those which are found drawn up in his Register, to be copied word for word under our Bull, and such it is.

Innocent, bishop [&c., as above]. It is fitting that the distinguished members of your holy order, who keep pious watch in the contemplation of heavenly things, and labour without ceasing in the zeal of a holy life, shall be so wisely directed and diligently fostered by the aid of the providence of the Apostolic See, that no shadow of calumny shall mar its internal peace or injure its religious welfare, but that they shall have in these things that strength and vigour, whereby with devout and peaceful minds they may wax strong in the service of the Holy Name. We have ascertained that it is contained in the privilege granted by the Apostolic See to your order, that when any of your churches shall be deprived of their abbot, or the election of abbot thereto shall be irregularly conducted . . . [here follows a repetition of the privilege granted in the Bull of Pope Honorius to the Premonstratensian churches, concerning the election of an abbot and the benediction to be granted to him by the Diocesan, p. 19]. But since, as you abbot, my son, have humbly related before us and our brethren, there might be among you some who might have some doubt or hesitation concerning these words and the meaning thereof, ye have on this account thought well to have recourse to the providence of the Apostolic See, humbly beseeching that it might deign by its declaration to provide a remedy in this behalf, for the relief of your consciences and the peace of your order. We have, therefore, by the advice of our brethren aforesaid, thought fit to make this declaration: to wit, that any one elected to the abbacy, after obedience duly rendered to him by the brethren according to the tenour of the same privilege, shall be by the aforesaid abbots presented to the diocesan, from him to receive freely and without examination, the charge of the monastery and the grace of benediction, wherein we understand the fulness of his office to be contained. Especially since it does not appear to have been the intention of our predecessors, who granted the aforesaid privilege to your order, that the abbot-elect should be examined by the Diocesan when presented to him. This is evident from the fact that if it should happen that after the examination had been duly made, the blessing were refused, the obedience that had been rendered to the abbot-elect by the brethren would appear to be nugatory, and it would seem improper that, the blessing being refused, he (the abbot-elect) should have been allowed to discharge the office and duty of abbot, since in this way he would appear to be judge and suitor in his own case; but if the diocesan rightly or wrongly refused a benediction of this kind, it would be necessary to commit to some other parties the decision of the case. By this declaration, however, we will not that you and your order should acquire any new right, nor that any prejudice to anyone be engendered. It shall not, therefore, be permitted to any man, &c.

Dated at Lyons, the sixth of the Ides of October, and the fourth year of our pontificate [10 October, 1246].

But by this, indeed, we intend not that you or your order shall acquire any new right.

Dated at Orvieto, the Ides of August, and the first year of our pontificate [1272].¹

at Viterbo, on the 1st September, 1271. He left Palestine November 18th, 1271, and arrived in Rome in March, 1272, and was crowned on the 27th of that month. It is possibly owing to this circumstance of his absence during election that, in dating his Bulls, he counts from the date of his coronation, and not of his election. He went during that summer to Orvieto (Urbs vetera). From there he issued a Bull to confirm Hugh, Bishop of Aberdeen on July 23rd, 1272, and also a Bull to grant a tenth to King Henry III. of England on October 7th, 1272. tenderness which exceeds both the desires and deserts of those who pray to Him, grants to those who truly serve Him more than they are able to merit; nevertheless desiring to render to the Lord an acceptable people, we invite, as it were by certain inducements and rewards, to wit, indulgences and pardons—the faithful of Christ to do that which is pleasing in His sight, so that they may be made thereby more fit partakers of Divine grace. Desiring therefore that the church of our beloved sons the Abbot and Convent of the Monastery of Cockersand, of the Premonstratensian order, and in the Diocese of York, should be frequented with fitting honour, we, trusting in the mercy of Almighty God and the authority of His blessed apostles Peter and Paul, have mercifully granted remission of one hundred days of the penance enjoined upon them, unto all who being truly penitent and having gone to confession, shall for motive of devotion visit that church on festivals of the blessed Virgin Mary, by whose name it is distinguished, and upon the anniversary of the dedication of the same.

SPECIAL BULL BY POPE GREGORY X. TO THE CONVENT, FREEING THEM FROM THE NECESSITY OF APPEARANCE IN SUITS AT LAW, WHICH MIGHT INVOLVE THEIR ABSENCE FROM THE CONVENT BEYOND TWO DAYS' JOURNEY.

Gregory, bishop, servant of the servants of God, to our beloved sons the Abbot and Convent of the Monastery of Cockersand, of the Premonstratensian order, in the diocese of York, health and apostolic benediction.

Albeit we willingly show favour to those who seek it, it behoves us to bestow grace and kindness upon those who religiously renounce not only their possessions but themselves, shutting themselves up in the camps of the cloister, and crucifying their flesh with the vices and lusts thereof; so that even as the more peacefully, so the more devotedly they may serve the Lord, and enrich themselves by the merit of a holy life and others by their example. When therefore, as has been set forth upon your part before us, some clergy as well as laity, not so much intent upon the execution of justice as to proceed injuriously against you, do maliciously cause you to be summoned from your monastery by apostolic letters, beyond the space of two or more days' journeys, whereby, wearied by travail and charges ye may be compelled either to yield to their suits or to submit to exorbitant terms.

Desiring as far as we can by God's help to provide for your peace, we grant you by authority of these presents, that in future you may not be dragged from your monastery into law suits by Letters obtained from the Apostolic See, beyond two days' journey, upon the things contained within them, unless the said Letters shall make full and express mention of the present Indult. It shall in no wise, therefore, be permitted to any man, &c.

GENERAL BULL BY THE SAME POPE TO THE ENGLISH PRELATES ENJOINING THEM TO PROTECT THE CONVENT OF COCKERSAND, AND TO EXCOMMUNICATE ALL PERSONS COMMITTING ANY ACT OF VIOLENCE OR ROBBERY AGAINST THE SAID CONVENT OR ITS SERVANTS.

churches, appointed throughout the kingdom of England, health and apostolic benediction. Not without grief of heart and the gravest disquietude have we learnt that ecclesiastical censures are in many places being unloosed, and the rigour of the canonical discipline becoming relaxed, so that religious, and particularly those to whom has been granted greater freedom by the privileges of the Apostolic See, do occasionally suffer injury and pillage by their aggressors, while hardly is there to be found any who will support them with suitable protection, and offer a wall of defence to cherish the innocence of the lowly. But especially our beloved sons the Abbot and brethren of Saint Mary of Cockersand, of the Premonstratensian order, complaining as well of frequent wrongs as of the daily default of justice, have sought to awaken your entire body by letters apostolic, so that you may with prompt and magnanimous action stand up for them in their wrongs against their persecutors, so that by your protection they may be relieved from the straits and difficulties in which they are placed. Wherefore by Apostolic Letters we charge the whole of you, and straightly command you that after due warning, if they be laity, you shall with lighted candles, strike with the sentence of excommunication those who have profanely seized the possessions, goods, or houses, of the aforesaid brethren, or have unjustly withheld aught which has been bequeathed to the said brethren by the last will of the dying, or who have dared to publish any sentence of excommunication or interdict against the said brethren, in contravention of the Apostolic Indults, or who have extorted from them tithes upon the fruit of their labours or the cattle bred upon their lands, in despite of the grants of the Apostolic See,—but if they be clergy, or canons regular, or monks, you will suspend them from office and benefice without benefit of appeal. Ye shall in no wise relax the sentence until full satisfaction be made to the brethren. And both laity and secular clergy who have incurred the bond of anathema² for laying on of violent hands, coming to the Apostolic See with letters from the diocesan bishop, shall be entitled to the loosening of that bond. In the case of monks and canons regular it shall be observed that if brethren of the same monastery lay violent hands upon one another, they shall obtain the benefit of absolution from their own abbot: but if a brother belonging to one monastery shall presume to use violence to the brother belonging to another, [they shall obtain it] from the abbots of the one who offered and the one who suffered the injury; even if some of them, before they had received the monastic habit, had committed some deed by which they had ipso facto incurred the sentence of excommunication; unless the excess were dire and extreme, as when it has extended to the mutilation of limbs or shedding of blood, or the laying of violent hands upon a Bishop or Abbot, since such and the like excesses may not without scandal be passed over. But if they have laid hands on members of the secular clergy, to avoid scandal, let them be sent to the Apostolic See for absolution.

Moreover, you shall place under the sentence of Interdict those places in which the goods of the aforesaid brethren or their vassals have been by violence detained, as long as they shall remain therein.

BULL BY POPE INNOCENT IV. TO THE PREMONSTRATENSIAN ORDER, GRANTING THAT THE ANNUAL VISITATIONS OF THE CONVENTS OF THE ORDER SHALL BE MADE ONLY BY THE ABBOTS OR MEMBERS OF THE ORDER IN ACCORDANCE WITH THE PRIVILEGES PREVIOUSLY GRANTED.

Innocent, Bishop, servant of the servants of God, to our beloved sons the Abbot of Prémontre and to his fellow Abbots, and to all the monasteries of the Premonstratensian Order, Health and Apostolic Benediction.

For the sake of the Divine Name, to which with watchful zeal you render the service of praise, the Apostolic See granteth to you right worthily whatever may promote the honour of your Order and contribute to its peaceful estate. Whereas the Church of Prémontre is the head of your whole Order from the time, as you affirm, of its institution, and has been visited and corrected by three Chief Abbots and the yearly Visitors, while all the other Churches of the said Order have always been so visited and corrected by the Abbot of Prémontre and by the Fathers, Abbots, and Visitors and others from the same Order whom they have appointed, and by no other person save by the Mandate of the Apostolic See; and that in the Privilege granted to the Order by the Apostolic See, it is expressly mentioned that if there should be in their persons or Churches aught which called for correction, it should be referred for hearing to the General Chapter of the Premonstratensians, there to be amended in accordance with justice and truth. We, therefore, assenting to your humble petitions, grant to you by Apostolic Authority that the aforesaid Church of Prémontré and other Churches, as in the past, so in the future, can be visited and corrected by the aforesaid Abbots and Visitors, and by others belonging to the said Order only, and by no other person, unless by a Mandate of the Apostolic See, which shall make full mention of these presents. It shall in nowise, therefore, be permitted to any man, &c.

BULL BY POPE GREGORY IX. GRANTING THE PREMONSTRATENSIAN ORDER INDULGENCE FROM THE INVESTIGATION OF THE SUBJECTS OF COMMISSIONS PUBLISHED BY THE APOSTOLIC SEE.

Gregory, Bishop, servant of the servants of God, to his beloved sons all the Priors and sub-Priors of the Premonstratensian Order, Health and Apostolic Benediction.

¹ Innocent IV. was elected on the 25th June, 1243. The Bull is, therefore, April 17th, 1247. On the same day he issued a Bull to his Commissioners in Ireland to compel the Bishop of Limerick, &c. "Dat. Lugduni xv Kalendas Maij, Pont. Nost. anno iv." (Theiner, Vetora Monumeta, cxviii.) Theiner puts it under general heading of 1246, but the fourth year of Pontificate would run from June 1246 to June 1247.

Whereas you have chosen before all things to serve the Lord freely in the silence of the cloister, it seemeth unbecoming to involve you in secular affairs. Wherefore, acceding to your prayers, we grant you by the authority of these presents, that by appointment on our Commissions, you shall not be bound to investigate the cases committed to you by the Apostolic See, unless perhaps in the letters of Commission themselves, we shall have made special mention of this indulgence. It shall, &c.

Datum Laterani, xvij^o kalendas februarii, Pontificatus nostri, Anno Septimo.

¹ The sixth year of the Pontificate of Gregory IX. runs from 19th March, 1232, to 18th March, 1233. The year is therefore 1232, and the date (viii Id. Junii) is the 6th of June. As it was a Bull of grace, and would have silken instead of hempen cords to its seals, the date was probably chosen specially for this day, which was the feast of St. Norbert, the Founder of the Order. On the 18th of February, 1233, the Pope was at Anagni (Theiner, lxx.). Alatri is the fortified place not far from Anagni where Gregory IX. took refuge in 1227, when assailed by the Emperor Frederick.

BULL BY THE SAME POPE, TO THE EFFECT THAT UNLESS SPECIAL MENTION BE MADE OF THE PREMONSTRATENSIAN ORDER IN ANY LETTERS APOSTOLIC, THE SAME ARE NOT TO BE HELD TO BE OF ANY FORCE AGAINST THE SAID ORDER.

Gregory, Bishop, servant of the servants of God, to our beloved sons the Abbot of Prémontré, and to his fellow Abbots, Health and Apostolic Benediction.

Although you have received as you declare, an Indult from the Apostolic See by which letters obtained from the Apostolic See against you, shall have no force unless they make mention of your Order; nevertheless we, desiring still further to provide for your peace, grant you by authority of these presents, that by that general clause, Quidam alii, you shall not be able to be in any way summoned, unless the letters Apostolic shall have made express mention of the Premonstratensian Order. It shall not be, &c.

² Three years before the date of this release, the boundaries between Pilling and Out-Rawcliffe had been the subject of a suit before the Justices in Eyre at Lancaster, which had been terminated by the award of five knights and seven other freeholders (see p. 48). The monks of Cockersand had then received seisin of the whole pasture of Pilling, afterwards confirmed by Richard le Botiler's quitclaim, as above.

³ There are two manuscripts of the Provincial Constitution of York in the British Museum, both in the Cottonian collection, viz., Vitellius, D. v. 1, and Cleopatra, D. iii. 191. The former, which may here be called "A," has been so destroyed by

Decretum Domini Walteri Gray, quondam¹ archiepiscopi Eboracensis, angliae primatis et apostolicae Sedis legati, editum apud Eboracum, tempore visitacionis suae, tam ad honorem Dei et ecclesiae Eboracensis ac omnium ecclesiarum per totam² provinciam existencium, quam doctrinam, praesentem informationem et memoriam omnium futurorum. Cum plerumque inter rectores ecclesiarum seu vicarios in provincia Eboracensi constitutos, eorundemque parochianos, super variis ornamentiis rebusque ecclesiasticis altercacio³ non modica sit exorta, Ideo quanta, quae et qualia ad rectores⁴ seu vicarios ecclesiarum per totam provinciam Eboracensem constitutos, sustentationem et reparacionem pertineant, quae autem ad parochianos eorundem de rebus ac ornamentis ecclesiasticis⁵ reparandis pertinere noscuntur: per subscripta, sole clarius⁶ elucescat, et Ideo ordinamus et statuimus, ut parochiani nostri omnes et singuli existant sic docti in singulis subsequentibus, ut sciant et intelligent atque obseruent totaliter universi; videlicet, quod calix, Missale, vestimentum ipsius ecclesiae principale, videlicet, casula, alba munda, amictus, stola, manuplus,⁷ zona cum tribus towellis,⁸ corporalia fire that but a small part of it is in any way legible. A copy is given in Wilkins' Concilia, vol. i. p. 698, and in Labb  and Cossart's Collection of Councils, tom. xiv. fol. 122 H., from whence it was copied into the larger collection by Mansi, tom. xxiii. fol. 789. The second manuscript (Cleopatra, D. iii. 191), which may be called "B," is also given in Labb  and Cossart's Collection of Councils, tom. xiv. fol. 123, and has been reproduced into the larger collection by Mansi, tom. xxiii. fol. 792.

The "B" manuscript is the older of the two, or has been copied from an older manuscript written during Archbishop Gray's lifetime. Thus in it he is styled simply "Archiepiscopus," and he speaks of "provinciam nostram," while in "A" "quondam" is inserted before "Archiepiscopi," and "nostram" is dropped. The copy in the Cockersand Register is from "A." It will be noticed that the "B" manuscript supplies a correction. All the copies in Labb  and Cossart's collection and in Wilkins' collection, as also in the Cockersand copy, read in the last paragraph but one "cum aliis navis ecclesiae et singulis aliis ad ipsos parochianos pertinere noscuntur." In the "B" manuscript it is "alii ecclesiae" (the aisles of the church), evidently the more rational reading. The verbal and clerical differences in the text with the two Cottonian manuscripts, the two readings given by Mansi, and that given by Wilkins, have been carefully noted.

This is the Provincial Constitution of York, as to which Church Ornaments the laity and the Incumbents are respectively bound to provide.

The Decree of the lord Walter Gray,⁵ late Archbishop of York, Primate of England, and Legate of the Apostolic See, published at York at the time of his visitation, as well for the honour of God, of the Church of York, and of the Churches throughout that province, as for the instruction of those who are now living, and for the information and record of those who are to come.

Whereas no small dispute hath at sundry times arisen between Rectors or Vicars of Churches in the Province of York and their parishioners, concerning various ornaments and articles of Church furniture.

Wherefore by the things hereinafter written, let it be made clearer than noonday⁶ how much, of what kind, and what are the things which for maintenance and repair pertain to the Rectors or Vicars throughout the Province of York, and what are the ornaments or articles of Church furniture of which the repair is recognized to pertain to the parishioners.

And therefore we ordain and decree that our parishioners,⁷ all and singular, shall in each of the following particulars so stand informed, that all of them shall fully mark, learn, and understand, that the following articles are known to pertain to the parishioners themselves, to wit :—a Chalice, Missal, the chief vestment of the Church itself, namely, the chasuble ; a clean Alb,⁸ Amice, Stole, maniple, girdle, with three Altar-cloths,¹ Corporals, and vestments for the Deacon and the Sub-deacon, of good quality according to the means of the parishioners and of the Church itself, with a principal silk cope for the chief festivals, and with two others for the rulers of the Choir on the aforesaid festivals; a processional Cross, and another smaller Cross for the dead, and a bier for the dead, a vessel for holy water, a pax,² Candlestick for the Paschal Candle; a thurible or censer, a lantern³ with a bell, a Lenten veil,⁴ two candlesticks for the torchbearers; of books: a Legenda,⁵ an Antiphonary,⁶ a Gradual,⁷ a Psalter,⁸ Portiforium,⁹ a tropier,¹⁰ Ordinal,¹¹ Missal,¹² Manual,¹³ a frontal for the High Altar, three Surplices, a becoming pixis for the Body of Christ, a banner¹⁴ for the Rogation days, large bells with their ropes, a holy Font with a lock, a Chrismatory,¹⁵ images in the Church; in the chancel a principal image of the Saint to whom the Church is dedicated; the mending of books and vestments as often as they will happen to be mended; with all the things above mentioned, the lights in the Church, the repair to the nave, and the construction of the same, with the belfrey, inside and outside, namely, the glazed windows, with the enclosure of the grave yards; with the aisles of the nave of the Church, and each other thing. But to the Rectors or Vicars,

² The small representation of Christ given to the people to kiss, for the "kiss of peace" at Mass.

³ There is an ordinance of John Peckham, Archbishop of Canterbury, prescribing the use of the lantern and the bell when the Blessed Sacrament was carried by the priest to the sick or dying — the lantern to prevent the lights being extinguished by the wind, and the bell to warn the people to follow or to kneel as the Blessed Sacrament passed.

⁵ Legenda contained readings from the lives of the Saints; lessons of the 2nd Nocturn at Matins.

⁶ Antiphonary: the collection of Antiphons for the Divine office.

⁷ Gradual: the verses or psalms sung at Mass before the Gospel.

⁸ Psalter: the Book of the Psalms.

⁹ Portiforium: the Divine offices in a convenient or portable form; corresponds to Breviary.

¹⁰ Tropier: book with certain verses of Psalms sung before the Introit.

¹¹ Ordinal: book of directions for celebrating the Divine offices; corresponds to Directory or Rubrics of Breviary.

¹² Missal: Mass-Book, containing Canon and ordinary of Mass, with various masses de Tempore et de Sanctis.

¹³ Manual: book containing the Administration of the Sacraments for use by parish priests; corresponds to the Ritual.

¹⁴ The Vexilla Rogationum was the banner carried in the public processions on Rogation days, and round the boundaries of the parish, &c.

according to the various ordinances, shall belong all other things: to wit, the principal chancel with the repair of the same, both as to walls and to roof, with the glazed windows pertaining to the same, with the desks and stools or benches and other becoming ornaments, so that with the prophet they may be able to sing, "O Lord, I have loved the beauty of Thy House," &c. ; with the dwelling house of the rectory and its repair, from time to time; and other things which are not contained in this writing, the Rectors or Vicars shall know that they may be compelled [to provide] by the local Ordinaries, according to this Constitution, and to others in this matter approved.

Confirmation by Roger de Mowbray,¹ son of William de Mowbray, to God and the abbot and monks of Cockersand, of four acres of land in Graystonegill, which Walter the weaver formerly held of them; of five acres and three perches of land in Bentham, which Gamel de Bentham held of them; of twelve acres of land in Moorthwaite, which William, son of Langusa, held of them; of eight acres of land in Sedbergh, which Ralph Whitehead held of them; of three acres of land in seisin of the said lands and appurtenances to Ranulf, Earl of Chester and Lincoln. Dugdale erroneously supposed that the Derby given by King Stephen to Ranulf Gernons in 1140—a part of the immense possessions confirmed to Earl Ranulph by Duke Henry (afterwards Henry II.) at the Treaty of Devizes in 1153—was West Derby, in the county of Lancaster, whereas it was undoubtedly the town of Derby. From the death of Ranulf Gernons, Earl of Chester, in 1153, until the year 1223, the Earls of Chester had no footing whatsoever in the county of Lancaster.

Bland, which Robert Beck held of them ; of seven acres of land in Sur-ridding and in Snellsargh, which the said monks have by the gift of John de Howthwaite ; of ten acres of land in Bland, which Ralph de Bland held of them, and of one perch of land in Clapham ; to be held in frankalmoign, with all the appurtenances, &c. [S.D. 1240-1267.]

HABEMUS autem plures alias confirmaciones quæ suis locis scriptæ sunt in isto volumine, ut pote, De Hoton in Lailondsis, De Tarlton in eodem, De Roberto Banastre de Makerfeld, De Waltero de Lindesay in Kendale, et de aliis locis nostris, quæ in suis provinciis et Wapentakis possunt reperiri. Et quæ decetere nobis concedendæ sunt, hic et in sequenti folio possunt inseri.

We have many other charters of confirmation in this volume, inscribed in their proper places : for instance, of Hutton and of Tarleton, both under Leylandshire ; Robert Banastre's, under Makerfield ; Walter de Lindesey's, under Kendal ; and others to be found under their own districts or wapentakes. Those to be granted hereafter may be inserted here and on the following page.

Grant in frankalmoign from Walter de Fauconberg,¹ to God and St. Mary of Cockersand, and to the abbot and monks of the Premonstratensian order serving God there, of the homage and service of Walter de Lingard and his heirs, of the yearly rent of half a mark, arising out of the said Walter de Lingard's whole tenement in Garstang, together with all warships, reliefs, eschaets, and other advantages thereunto appurtenant; and release and quitclaim of the homage and service of the said abbot, which the said Walter de Fauconberg used to demand from him: to wit, four arrows yearly from his tenement in Forton; and confirmation of the grant of the whole town of Forton by its bounds, and of the land and tenement of the aforesaid Walter de Lingard, together with all other their lands and tenements in the fee of Garstang, fully discharged from all secular services, suit of court and mill, and from all other suits and pleas, whereof lands given in frankalmoign may be discharged; for the health of his soul, and the souls of his wife, his ancestors and successors, and for the fellowship and other benefits of that house and order, specially granted to him, into which the said monks have for ever received him, the lady Agnes his wife, and their children.

¹ Upon the death, without issue, of Peter de Brus III., son of Peter de Brus II., by his wife Helewise de Lancaster, in 56 Henry III., the moiety of the Barony of Kendal, and other estates, were partitioned between his four sisters and co-heirs, of whom the second, Agnes, married Walter de Fauconberg. This partition is fully detailed in a note, p. 3, of the Furness Couher. The above confirmation suggests that the original partition of the fief of de Lancaster between de Brus and de Lindesey was afterwards modified, for by that partition the manors of Warton and Garstang fell to the share of de Lindesey, whereas at the date of this confirmation, i.e. between the years 1271-1303 (probably 1271-1282) Walter de Fauconberg had acquired territorial rights in Garstang and Forton.

Confirmation by Hugh Bussel,¹ Lord of Penwortham [to the monks of Cockersand], of all the reasonable donations made to them within his fee.

Robert Bussel's charter of confirmation is to be sought for under "Leylandshire," viz., after "Tarleton."

HENRICUS de Lacy, Comes Lincolniæ et Constabularius Henricus de Cestriæ, Omnibus ad quos præsens scriptum pervenerit, Lacy. salutem in Domino. Noveritis me cartam Domini Johannis de Lacy, Comitis Lincolniæ et Constabularii Cestriæ, avi mei, in hæc verba inspexisse: Sciant omnes tam præsentes quam futuri quod Ego Johannes de Lacy, etc. Quære cartam totam scriptam in Laylondchire in primo folio quæ tota de verbo ad verbum hic inseri debet. Ego autem Henricus, dictam concessionem et confirmationem ratam habens et firmam eam pro me et hæredibus meis per presens scriptum confirmo atque corroboro. Et Insuper dictis Deo et sanctæ Marie de Cokersand et Canonicis ibidem Deo servientibus, per præsens scriptum remisi et quietum clamavi de me et hæredibus meis servicium Domini Regis, et cetera servicia omnia quæ dictus Johannes, avus meus per confirmationem prædictam sibi et hæredibus suis reservavit. Ita quod dicti Canonici totam villam de Hoton prædictam cum suis pertinenciis ut plenius supradictum est, habeant et possideant sibi et successoribus suis, In liberam, puram et perpetuam elemosinam, quietè et solutè ab omni terreno servicio, seculari exaccione et demanda in perpetuum. In cuius rei testimonium præsenti scripto sigillum meum apponi feci. Testibus, Domino Johanne de Becker, etc.

Confirmation by Insperimus, by Henry de Lacy, Earl of Lincoln and Constable of Chester [to the monks of Cockersand], of the charter of confirmation granted by his grandfather, John de Lacy, Earl of Lincoln and Constable of Chester, of the grant of the town of Hutton in Leylandshire, made to the said monks by Elias, son of Roger; and release and quitclaim by the said Henry de Lacy of the service due to the king¹ by the said monks, and of all other services which the said John de Lacy reserved to himself and his heirs by his said charter; so that from henceforth the said monks might hold the said town of Hutton in frankalmoign, fully discharged from all secular service.

SCIANT, etc., quod Ego Galfridus Albalistarius, etc., Deo [fol. 19] et beatæ Mariæ de Cokersand, etc., quamdam porcionem 1 terræ meæ, videlicet, totam terram inter Colecros et ffauerbec, Preshou, scilicet, a Colecros ex transverso usque ad profundam mussam, Galfridus in parte australi, et a parte aquilonis (sic) usque ad sablonem, Arbalis- tam in longitudine quam in latitudine ; in puram et perpetuam elemosinam, liberè et quietè ab omni servicio seculari et exactione ; Dominicum Pro salute animæ Regis Johannis, etc. Hanc autem donacionem ego et hæredes mei contra omnes homines, etc. Testibus, etc.

Grant in frankalmoign from Geoffrey Arbalestrier¹ (cross-bowman) to God and St. Mary of Cockersand, of a portion of his territory in Preesall, lying between Colecross and Fauerbeck : to wit, from Colecross southwards to the deep moss, and from the north side to the sands ; for the health of the soul of King John, &c. [s.D. 1205-1246.]

SCIANT, etc., duas bovatas terræ in villa de Preshou, quas 2 Michael præpositus tenuit ; in liberam, puram, etc., sicut Preshout. aliqua elemosina, etc., cum communi pastura, libertatibus et Idem. eisiamentis, quæ pertinent ad duas bovatas terræ prædictæ villæ ; Dominicum Pro salute animæ Domini Johannis et Domini Henrici, Regis Angliæ. Cum warrantia, testibus, etc.

Et aliam confirmacionem habemus singulariter de una bovata 2A de eodem.

Grant in frankalmoign from the said Geoffrey Arbalestrier [to the monks of Cockersand] of two oxgangs of land in the town of Preesall, which Michael the Reeve formerly held, with common of pasture, liberties, and easements belonging to two oxgangs of that town ; for the health of the soul of Lord John and of Lord Henry, King of England. [S.D. 1205-1246.]

3 Idem. SCIANT, etc., Galfridus Arbalistarius dedi, etc., duas acras terræ meæ in Preshou : scilicet, in campo qui vocatur Kirkegate, propinquiores terræ quam abbas de ffurnes de me tenuit ad firmam ; cum communione et eisiamentis tantæ terræ pertinentibus ; in liberam, puram, etc. Cum warantia et testibus.

Grant in frankalmoign from the said Geoffrey Arbalestrier [to the monks of Cockersand] of two acres of his land in Preesall : to wit, in the Kirkgate field, near to land which the abbot of Furness held at farm from the said Geoffrey, with common of pasture and easements appertaining to so much land. [S.D. 1205-1246.]

4 Preshout. SCIANT, etc., quod ego Galfridus, etc., dedi, etc., toftum et Croftum quod Gemma de me tenuit in villa de Preshou, Idem. cum una acra in campo ejusdem villæ ; in liberam, puram, etc., Dominicum cum communi pasta et omnibus aliis eisiamentis et libertatibus prædictæ villæ pertinentibus ; pro salute animæ meæ, etc. Cum warantia, etc.

Grant in frankalmoign from the said Geoffrey [to the monks of Cockersand] of a toft and a croft which Gemma held of him in the town of Preesall, together with one acre of land in the townfield, with common of pasture, &c., for the health of his soul. [S.D. 1205-1246.]

5 De Piscaria. SCIANT, etc., quod ego Galfridus dedi, etc., unam piscariam super Wir, a parte aquilonis de Hacunshou, ubicunque maluerint, et unum toftum et unum Croftum in Preshout, vide- Idem. licet, illud quod fuit Rogeri, filii Oschiel, in quo in extremo vitæ Dominicum suæ mansit et mortuus erat, et unam terræ acram in campo præfatæ villæ de Preshout, cum communibus eisiamentis ad tantum tenementum pertinentibus, et cum pasta decem animalium et xv ovium, et unius equi; in puram et perpetuam, liberè, quietè, etc., pro salute animæ meæ, etc. Cum warantia, testibus, etc.

Grant in frankalmoign from the said Geoffrey [to the monks of Cockersand] of a fishery upon Wyre, from the north end of Hackensall, wheresoever they might have a preference, and of a toft and a croft in Preesall: to wit, that which Roger, son of Oschel had, in which he dwelt during his latter days and died, together with one acre of land in the townfield of Preesall, with the appurtenances and with right of pasturage for ten beasts, fifteen sheep, and one horse; for the health of his soul. [S.D. 1205-1246.]

SCIANT, etc., quod ego Johannes filius domini Galfridi de Hacunshou dedi, etc., octodecim acras terræ meæ cum Hacunshou. pertinetiis, continuè jacentes in occidentali parte campi de Johannes Licol, infra divisam villæ de Hacunshou, quas aliquando filius ejus. habuerunt de me ad firmam, cum toto prato quod jacet infra Dominicum dictas xvij acras, cum libero introitu et exitu ad easdem per terram meam, et cum libertate capiendi sabulonem de proximo pullo et trahendi ad sæpedictas acras per terram meam, si voluerint et opus habuerint. Et cum pasta xxⁱⁱ vaccis cum sequela duorum annorum habenda infra divisam villæ de Preshout tam in mussis quam mariscis, in Karris et in omnibus aliis communibus pasturis et locis spectantibus ad dictam villam, salvis mihi et hæredibus defensis meis quæ factæ fuerunt tempore domini Galfridi patris mei et cum omnibus aliis eisiamentis et libertatibus prædictæ villæ de Preshout, tantæ terræ pertinentibus; in liberaim, puram et perpetuam, etc., pro salute animæ domini Johannis Regis, et Henrici, etc. Ita quod nec ego, etc. Cum warantia et testibus.

Grant in frankalmoign from John, son of Sir Geoffrey de Hackensall [to the monks of Cockersand], of eighteen acres of his land, lying contiguous in the west side of the Licol field within Hackensall, which

[the monks of Cockersand] formerly held of him at farm, together with the whole meadow lying within the said eighteen acres of land, with free ingress and egress over his land, and licence to take sand from the nearest pool, to draw it over his land to the said eighteen acres, when they wished or had need; and also right of pasturage for twenty cows with their offspring of two years, within the bounds of the town of Preesall, as well in the mosses, in the marshes and in the carts, and all other common pastures and places thereunto belonging, saving to himself and his heirs the fences¹ which had been made in his father's lifetime; for the health of the souls of King John and King Henry. [S.D. 1246-1262.]

7 OMNIBUS Christi fidelibus, etc., Johannes de Hacunsho, bovatarum ejusdem villæ; cum corpore Amabiliæ uxoris meæ;

¹ Fences included not only the hedge or ditch, but the ground enclosed from the commons and pastured by the several owner's cattle. In Norman French, land so enclosed was said to be en deffens or en deffuis. This term also extended to land enclosed within the precincts of a forest, and land from which a crop was taken, which lay enclosed from mid-March to Saint Cross Day [September 14th], and was commonable during the remainder of the year. (Vide Ducange, in voce defensa.)

in liberam, puram, etc. Cum communi pastura, libertatibus et eisiamentis quæ pertinent ad unam bovatam dictæ villæ; pro salute animæ, etc. Ita quod nec ego, etc. Cum warantia et testibus.

Testamentary grant in frankalmoign from the said John de Hackensall [to the monks of Cockersand] for the health of his soul, of an oxgang of land in the town of Preesall: to wit, the half oxgang which Richard de Poulton held, and the half oxgang which Ralph, the husband of Sarota, held, together with one whole toft, which William, son of Avice, held; with provision that if anything should be lacking to make one complete toft, it should be made up from land hard by, so as to be of equal worth to one toft belonging to one oxgang of that town; with common of pasture and all other appurtenances of one oxgang of that town; together with the body of Amabel his wife.¹ [S.D. 1246-1262.]

Testamentary grant in frankalmoign from Robert de Hackensall¹ [to the monks of Cockersand], with the assent of his heir, for the health of the soul of King John, of the third part of all his territory in Hackensall and Preesall, which his father formerly held, and which he now holds, with common of pasture, &c., as contained in the charter of our Lord the King which he has. [S.D. 1199-1200.]

11 SCIANT, etc., Alanus, filius Petri de Hacunsho, dedi, etc.,
 Hacunsho. unam acram terræ in villa de Hacunsho, illam scilicet, Alanus filius quam Adam de Crumbles mihi resignavit et quietam clamavit, Petri. scilicet, dimidiam acram super Northcroftes, et unam percata Dominicum super Hacunsho, et unam percata super le Coteflatte, cum communi pastura et aliis, etc., tantæ terræ pertinentibus ; in puram et perpetuam, etc., pro salute, etc. ; ita quod nec ego, etc. Cum warantia et testibus.

¹ By charter dated at Chinon, 28 Sept., 1199, King John confirmed to Robert de Hackensall the four oxgangs of land in Preesall and Hackensall, which Hugh, father of the said Robert, formerly held, and which had been confirmed to the said Robert by John, when he was Count of Mortain. There was apparently no relationship between the said Robert, son of Hugh de Hackensall, and Geoffrey Arbalestrier, whose descendants also assumed the territorial surname, de Hackensall.

Grant in frankalmoign from Alan, son of Peter de Hackensall [to the monks of Cockersand], for the health of his soul, of an acre of land in Hackensall: to wit, the one which Adam de Crimble released and quitclaimed to him, to wit, half an acre upon Northcrofts, one perch¹ upon Hackensall, and one perch upon the Coteflat, with common of pasture appertaining to so much land. [S.D. 1260-1265.]

SCIANT, etc., quod Alanus, etc., dedi, etc., totum jus et Preshout. clamium, quod habui in tota terra et vasto et communia Idem. infra has divisas, scilicet, de le Stockenepul, ubi crux sita est, Pastura. recta linea extensa in austro, usque ad crucem super le Tunge, et sic de illa cruce, etc., sicut continetur in carta Galfridi [filii] domini Johannis, donatoris hujus terræ, sine aliquo retenemento, et cum omnibus eisdem libertatibus. Ita quod nec ego, etc.; in liberam, puram, etc., pro salute animarum dominorum Johannis et Henrici regum. Cum warantia et testibus.

Quitclaim by the said Alan [to the monks of Cockersand] of all his land, waste and common, within these bounds: to wit, from the Stockenpool, where the cross is set up, in a straight line extending southward, to the cross upon the Tongue, and so from that cross, &c., as contained in the charter² of Geoffrey, [the son] of Sir John de Hackensall, the grantor of this land; for the health of the souls of King John and King Henry. [S.D. 1260-1265.]

A.D. 1271. Cirograph of an agreement made between the abbot and convent of Cockersand and Geoffrey de Hackensall, whereby the said

Geoffrey, for himself and his heirs, granted and released to the said abbot and convent all claim to their ditches, made or to be made, in Preesall, around the pasture and moss, which they have by the gift of the said Geoffrey and his ancestors, and so that they might, without let or gainsay of the said Geoffrey and his heirs, at their own convenience, ditch and enclose the said land, from the dyke made at the Blakelache, in a line to their eastern dyke, so that the said Geoffrey and his heirs should never claim any right within the said dykes. And the said abbot and convent for themselves and their successors, released to the said Geoffrey and his heirs all right or claim within the said Geoffrey's dyke in Preesall, made before the date of this composition. All contentions to be put away in a kindly manner, and not to be hereafter raised, or if raised, to be disregarded.

Composition made between Sir Ralph de Truno, Prior of Lancaster, by the title of the Lord Abbot of Séez specially committed to him, and by the authority of his church of Poulton and the Abbot and Convent of Cockersand. The said Prior having been appointed to collect what had been lost, so far as it might be possible to do so, and to make terms in such wise as he should consider advantageous to the abbey of Séez and to the church of Poulton, and having accordingly demanded from the said abbot and convent of Cockersand the parochial tithe of a certain pasture, in the parish of the said church, lying between Colecross and the outer western dyke towards Preesall, called Stockpool, which said pasture the said abbot and convent obtained by the confirmation of Sir John de Hackensall and Geoffrey, his son: came to the following agreement with the said abbot and convent, on Thursday, being the eve of the circumcision of our Lord, A.D. 1271: to wit, that the said Prior having remitted all the losses previously sustained, the said abbot and convent should yearly thereafter pay to the said church of Poulton, in the name of tithe for the said pasture, the sum of eighteen pence at the feast of St. Michael; and further, that if the said abbot and convent should hereafter seek to bring the said pasture into tillage, that the said church of Poulton should fully gather the tithe of garbs of the whole tillage to be made therein, as well as the aforesaid sum of eighteen pence. To render this composition irrefragably binding for the future, both parties have hereunto set their seals. [31st December, 1271.]

¹ Stalmine and Stainall were held during the reigns of Henry II., Richard and John, by a thane called Robert, whose ancestors had doubtless been thanes of these townships both before and after the Norman invasion. Thanchise was a military tenure, involving the personal service of the tenant to his lord whenever demanded ; probably, however, this service had been compounded for, to some extent, by the rents under which the thane-lands were held, at the date of the inquisition taken in the reign of King John, and recorded in the Testa de Nevill.

Robert, thane of Stalmine and Stainall, had issue—Peter de Stalmine, Alan, Henry, and Eva, who married Siward, son of Huck. Peter de Stalmine had issue—William, whose sons John and Henry died s.p. before 20 Henry III., and Robert, who had livery of his brother's land in that year. His son and heir, Adam, lord of Stalmine, had livery of his father's land in 23 Henry III., and had issue John, who was Lord of Stalmine in the reign of Edward I.

Grant in frankalmoign from the said Adam, son of Robert [to the monks of Cockersand], of a portion of his land in Stalmine, to wit, all his land upon Fertybrack, between the church land of Stalmine and land which Geoffrey gave to the said monks, with common of pasture and easements appertaining to so much land. [s.d. 1238-1259.]

4 OMNIBUS, etc., Adam, filius Roberti salutem. Noveritis me, etc., quandam porcionem terræ meæ in Stalmin, scilicet, unam dimidiā landam super Morfurlong in oriente, Dominicum quæ jacet proprius terræ dictorum canonicorum, quam habent de dono Johannis, filii Willelmi, cuius una extremitas occidentalis buttat versus campum monachorum, et altera usque in Houtlone; et erit dicta dimidia landa ejusdem latitudinis et longitudinis, sicut illa quæ fuit Matildæ sororis, quam dicti canonici habent; cum omnibus libertatibus, etc., tantæ terræ pertinentibus; in liberam, puram, etc.; ita, etc. Cum warantia et testibus.

Grant in frankalmoign from the said Adam, son of Robert [to the monks of Cockersand], of a portion of his land in Stalmine, to wit, half a strip of land upon Moor-furlong on the east, lying near land which the said monks have by the gift of John, son of William, abutting at the western end towards the monks' field, and at the other upon Outlane; the said half strip of land to be of length and breadth equal to that of [his] sister Matilda, which the said monks now have; with all the rights pertaining to so much land. [s.d. 1238-1259.]

5 OMNIBUS Christi fidelibus, etc., Adam, etc. Noveritis me, Confirmacio etc., confirmasse, etc., omnes rationabiles donaciones, quæ Idem Adam factæ sunt dictis canonicis in toto feodo meo, scilicet, de Stalmyn et Staynole, prout cartæ ipsorum testantur; in liberam, puram, Dominicum etc.; pro salute animæ, etc.; ita quod nec ego, etc. Cum warantia et testibus.

Has etiam terras Helena uxor ejus, in viduitate sua, quietas clamavit et confirmavit, nomine dotis suæ. Cum testibus.

Confirmation by Adam, son of Robert [to the monks of Cockersand], of all the reasonable gifts of land which had been made to them within his fee of Stalmine and Stainall; as witness the charters which they have. Witnesses:—William de Clifton, William de Carleton, John de Hackensall, William de Singleton, and Walter de Ellel.¹ [s.d. 1238-1262.]

Helen, wife of the said Adam, in her widowhood, quit-claimed and confirmed these lands to the said monks, in the name of her dower. [s.d. 1260-1274.]

[O] MNIBUS Christi fidelibus præsens scriptum visuris vel audituris, Helena domina de Stalmyn æternum in Domino salutem. Noveritis me in legia potestate mea et viduitate dedisse, concessisse et præsenti scripto meo confirmasse Deo et beatæ Mariæ de Cokersand et Canonicis ibidem Deo servientibus, totam terram quæ me contingebat nomine dotis in villa de Stalmyn, quam Adam quondam maritus meus dictis Religiosis contulit; habendam et tenendam in puram et perpetuam elemosinam sicut aliqua elemosina liberius dari potest, cum omnibus pertinentiis suis sine aliquo retenemento; ita quod nec ego Helena nec aliquis aliis nomine vel jure meo aliquid jus vel clameum in omnibus terris cum suis pertinentiis a dicto Ada quondam Marito meo dictis Religiosis collatis exigere, habere, vel vendicare poterimus; in hujus rei testimonium præsenti scripto sigillum meum est appositum. Hiis testibus:—Galfrido de Hacunshou, Willelmo de Eccliston, Amauricio de Lechamton, Waltero de Carleton, Roberto de Syreburne, Alano de Hacunshou, et aliis.²]

¹ Dodsworth has preserved transcripts of several Cockersand charters, which he found among the evidences of Henry Butler, Esquire, of Rawcliffe, in May, 1640. From these transcripts I have been enabled to add the two charters following "Stalmine, No. 5;" and in several other instances, the names of the witnesses, which the compiler of the Chartulary has so unfortunately omitted to transcribe from the originals. The following is Dodsworth's transcript of No. 5:—

"Adam filius Roberti, Dominus de Stalmyn, confirmavit Abbathizæ de Cokersand, omnes donaciones eis factas. Testibus:—Willelmo de Clifton, Willelmo de Kariton, Johanne de Hacuneshou, Willelmo [de] Singleton, Waltero de Ellale." (MSS., liii. fol. 92.)

Confirmation by Helena, Lady of Stalmine, in her widowhood, to God and St. Mary of Cockersand, and to the monks serving God there, of all the land which was of her dower in Stalmine, which Adam her late husband had bequeathed to the said monks. Witnesses:—Geoffrey de Hackensall, William de Eccleston, Aumary de Leckhampton, Walter de Carleton, Robert de Sherburn, Alan de Hackensall, and others. [S.D. 1259-1271.]

[NOTUM sit omnibus præsens scriptum visuris vel audituris quod ego Helena, Domina de Stalmyn, permissione et concessione Willelmi de Camera, sponsi mei, cum ad me pertineat de jure, tradidi et concessi in tota vita mea Abbati et Conventui de Cokersand totam terram quæ me contingebat in Campo qui vocatur Yarsemure in teritorio de Stalmyn, scilicet, quatuor landas et dimidiam per perticulas jacentes et unam acram super Harefurlonge extendentem unum Capud apud orientem, et aliud occidentem; habendam et tenendam cum omnibus pertinentiis suis et libertatibus, dictis Abbati et Conventui usque ad finem vitæ meæ; ita quod nec ego Helena, nec dictus Willelmus sponsus meus, nec aliquis alias in tota vita mea aliquid de prædicta terra exigere valeamus. Pro hac autem concessione et dimissione dederunt mihi dicti Abbas et Conventus unam marcam Argenti præ manibus. Et ego dicta Helena una cum dicto Willelmo sponso meo, dictam terram cum omnibus pertinentiis suis liberavi ab omni exaccione et demanda dictis Abbati et Conventui usque ad finem vitæ meæ, tenemur warantizare. In hujus rei testimonium tam ego dicta Helena quam dictus Willelmus maritus meus, huic scripto sigilla nostra apposuimus. Testantibus:—Alano de Singilton, Henrico de Haidoc, Galfrido de Hacunshou, Willelmo de Eccliston, Rogero de Stainole, Johanne de Lailond, Alano de Hacunshou, et aliis.

³ She had married William Marshall of Stalmine.

In the reign of Henry II. Stainall ultra Wyre, now known as Steyna, was held, together with Thornton, by Robert de Winwick, who gave it to Ughtred, son of Huck. The land was one carucate, held in drengage. Ughtred, son of Huck, afterwards gave all, or part of it, to William, son of Swain, of Carleton, in marriage with his daughter Matilda. Matilda was afterwards married by King John to Richard de Workedley. At the date of the Survey recorded in the Testa de Nevill, c. 1212, Steyna was held by Alan de Singleton, grandson of Ughtred, son of Huck.

² This township lay on both banks of the river Wyre; Staynole citra Wir, on the eastern side, Staynole ultra Wir, on the western; now known respectively as Stainall and Steyna.

Grant in frankalmoign from the Lady Eva, daughter of Robert de Stalmine [to the monks of Cockersand], of an oxgang of land in Stainall, with a toft and the appurtenances within the town and without; and confirmation of all the messuages in the eastern part of the town, between Henry's toft and the Carr, and of three seillons next to the said messuages, and of the Medowplot, which Siward her husband had given to the said brethren. Pro hac autem donacione et cartæ meæ confirmatione dederunt mihi dictus Abbas et Conventus x marcas argenti. Ego verò, etc., scilicet (sic) warantia et testibus.

Istam autem bovatam sicut præscriptum est cum omnibus suis pertinenciis de verbo ad verbo (sic) confirmavit nobis et dedit Willelmus filius ejus in omnibus sicut præscriptum est. Præterea ego Willelmus dedi et concessi, etc. ; homagia et relivia et omnia alia servicia quæcumque ratione prædictæ bovatæ terræ ad me vel hæredes meos decetero potuerunt pertinere, præter prædictos v denarios. Cum warantia et testibus.

Grant from Roger, son of Henry de Stainall [to the monks of Cocker-sand], of one entire oxgang of land in Stainall with the appurtenances, for five pence yearly rent, payable at Christmas, at Easter, at the feast of St. John the Baptist, and at Michaelmas, by equal instalments, which he owed for all services to his chief lord, saving the service due to the King. For which grant and confirmation the said abbot and monks gave him ten marks of silver. [S.D. 1246-1262.]

William his son granted and confirmed the said oxgang of land with the appurtenances to the said monks, and further granted to them the homage, reliefs, and all other services which might hereafter belong to him and his heirs by virtue of the said oxgang, except the said annual rent of five pence. [S.D. 1246-1268.]

Letters of William, prior of Holy Trinity, and John, dean of York city, to Richard, clerk of Claughton,¹ notifying him that upon Thursday after the feast of All Souls, by the advice of council learned in the law, and according to the strict interpretation of the law, and by virtue of the apostolic authority with which they were charged, they had adjudged to the Abbot and Convent of Cockersand, one oxgang of land with appurtenances in Stainall,² which William, son of Swain, and Matilda his wife had bequeathed to the said monks in frankalmoign, of which land Richard de Workedley had deprived them, and respecting which the said monks had summoned him before them in the ecclesiastical court ; further enjoining the said Richard, the clerk by the papal authority with which they were charged, to make full restitution without delay to the said monks, to publicly excommunicate, in full chapter with candles burning, all who should gainsay him or offer resistance, and to cause all men to strictly avoid such persons, and in case the said Sir Richard de Workedley should be found in his deanery before mid-Lent, to effectually induce him to pay the said Abbot and Convent before that date twelve silver marks, in which sum they had condemned him, on account of the loss and expenses of the said monks, and in case he remained contumacious, to ensure the denial to him of all the sacraments of the church, and moreover to excommunicate him.

² The marginal notes state that Henry de Haydock held this oxgang of land in 1268, in fee, rendering 12*d.* yearly, and half a mark at each decease. He held this land, half an oxgang in Northcross, and a rent of 12*d.* in Cottam, of the said monks, in exchange for land in Forton. Northcross in Carleton was one of the oldest grants to the abbey, of a date earlier than A.D. 1190. See the last three charters.

Grant in frankalmoign and quitclaim from Hugh, son of Richard le Rous² of Marton [to the monks of Cockersand], of two pence rent which he was wont to receive from Henry de Whitington, for one ox-gang of land, which the said Henry formerly held of him in the town of Marton, with the tofts, crofts, messuages, dwelling houses, and all other appurtenances ; and all his rights in the demesne lands or in the services of the free tenants, with common rights, &c. [S.D. 1230-1250.]

In the year 1212, as also in 1242, Little Marton was held by Adam de Marton, whose ancestors had long held it by military service. In the latter year he died, and his son William de Marton paid a fine of three marks for livery. He is the donor in Charter No. 7, and appears to have been succeeded by his son, Richard de Marton (No. 10).

² In early time a reddish dye was obtained from a plant called by the Goths Rhos or Ros. The Latin rendering of this word was Rufus, and appears to have been applied to individuals possessing red hair. This word also appears in certain place-names, where brown herbage, or perhaps heath-clad hills were features in the landscape—cf. Rossendale. Used as a surname, I have translated Rufus "le Rous."

mare et ad pullum; salvis tamen Waltero filio Suani et hæredibus suis xxⁱⁱv acris, habendis et tenendis de prædictis Abbate et Canonicis in perpetuum pro sex denariis ad festum sancti Michaelis annuatim pro omni servicio reddendis; in puram et perpetuam elemosinam, liberè, quietè, honorificè, integrè et plenariè ab omni seculari servicio et exactione, sicuti aliqua elemosina liberius, quietius et melius dari possit ac teneri; ita quod nec ego, nec, etc. Si verò aliqua demanda huic terræ præfatæ in posterum evenerit: de residuo feodi mei ego et hæredes mei eam in perpetuum ad quietabimus; hanc autem donacionem ego et hæredes mei contra omnes qui mori possunt prædictis canonicis, etc., warantizabimus et de omni servicio et demanda ad quietabimus; et insuper Dei maledictionem et beatæ Mariæ et meam habeant omnes contra hanc meam donacionem venientes. Hiis testibus.

Grant in frankalmoign from William le Boteler¹ [to the monks of Cockersand] for the health of his soul and the soul of Dionisia his wife, of a certain portion of his demesne land in Layton,² to wit, all his share of Threeplands, as distinguished by the marks and crosses of the said Brethren; with the appurtenances, and with free egress and ingress to the Sea and to the Pool; saving to Walter, son of Swain and his heirs twenty five acres, to hold of the said Abbot and Monks in perpetuity, by the yearly rent of sixpence, payable at Michaelmas, for all service. Any future demand upon this land to be met out of the residue of his fee. The malison of God, of the blessed Virgin, and of the said donor upon all men contravening this gift. [s.d. 1252-1268.]

OMNIBUS, etc., Willelmus Pincerna salutem. Noveritis me dedisse, etc., viginti acras terræ in territorio de Lathon, super culturam quæ vocatur Wytheruum in parte occidentali

¹ The Botelers of Warrington held one knight's fee in Layton, Warbreck, and Great Bispham (10 carucates). The land called Threeplands lay between Layton and Marton. One moiety was a portion of the Lord's demesne land, the other moiety had been already granted by charter to Walter de Carleton, under the fee farm rent of 6*d.*, which rent became payable by the above charter to the monks of Cockersand. This free rent was accounted for in the Cockersand Rental of A.D. 1501 as follows:—“Idem Dominus [de Laton] tenet terram vocatam Threfylde, [per] liberam redditum vjd.” The same Rental accounted for the annual rent charge of 40*s.*, created in favour of the monks by the charter No. 6, as follows:—“Dominus de Laton reddit de Camera sua annuatim xlⁱⁱ.” (Chetham Miscellanies, vol. lvii.)

Grant in frankalmoign from William le Boteler [to the monks of Cockersand] of fifty acres of his demesne lands in Laton, to wit, the Threeplands, lying between Lytham and Marton ; with the appurtenances, and free ingress and egress to the Sea and to the Pool. The said monks were to hold twenty-five acres of this land in demesne and as to the other twenty-five acres, were to receive in perpetuity from Walter, son of Swain and his heirs, sixpence yearly at the feast of St. Michael for all service. With warranty, and acquittance from any future claim to be made upon the said land. The malison of God and of the Donor upon all men who should contravene this charter. [s.d. 1252-1268.]

4 OMNIBUS sanctæ matris ecclesiæ, etc., Thomas de Bethum et Amiria sponsa sua, filia Ricardi filii Rogeri salutem. Sciatis nos dedisse quintam partem dimidiæ carucatæ terræ in Houwes inter Lithum et Lathon quam tenemus de feodo Willelmi Pincernæ; cum communione et pastura et omnibus aliis eisiam mentis et libertatibus prædictæ terræ pertinentibus; in liberam et puram, etc.; pro salute animarum nostrarum, etc., salvo forinceco servicio. Cum warantia et testibus.

Grant in frankalmoign from Thomas de Beetham and Amuria¹ his wife, daughter of Richard, son of Roger [to the monks of Cockersand], of the fifth part of the half carucate of land in Howes, between Lytham and Laton, which the said Thomas and Amuria held of the fee of William le Boteler; with common of pasture and the appurtenances, and freedom from all service excepting that due to the King. [s.d. 1235-1249.]

5 OMNIBUS Christi fidelibus præsens scriptum visuris vel audituris, Dominus Willelmus Pincerna salutem in domino. Noveritis me reddidisse Abbati et Conventui de Cokersand et ecclesiæ suæ, totam terram cum omnibus pertinentiis suis sine aliquo retenemento, quam habuerunt et habere debuerunt in Howes, inter Lithum et Laton de dono Thomæ de Bethum et Amiriæ sponsæ suæ, sicut carta Thomæ et Amiriæ plenius testatur et proportionat; in hujus rei testimonium præsentibus sigillum meum apposui. Datum apud Lancastre iij^o idus Februarii, anno regis Henrici lvj^o, præsentibus Justiciariis Domini regis Itineribus. Valete.

¹ She was one of the five daughters and co-heiresses of Richard, son of Roger, thane of Lytham and Woodplumpton. The land called Howes, lying between Lytham and Layton, which was the subject of this grant, may possibly be identified with the Pulhowse mentioned in the Cockersand Rental of A.D. 1501. (Chetham Miscellanies, vol. lvii.)

Sciendum quod lecta est hæc litera et inrotulata in omnibus rotulis Justiciariorum apud Lancastre ; scilicet Domini Walteri De Elyun, Domini Johannis de Oketon, Petri de Cestria, et aliorum ; iij^o idus Februarii, anno domini M^oCC^o septuagesimo primo.

Letter of acknowledgment by Sir William le Boteler that he had rendered to the Abbot and Convent of Cockersand, and to their church, all the land with the appurtenances in Howes, between Lytham and Laton which they held by the gift of Thomas de Beetham and Amuria his wife, according to their charter. Given at Lancaster on the third of the ides of February, 56 Henry III., in the presence of the King's Justices Itinerant, the letter being read and enrolled in the said Justices' rolls at Lancaster, viz., those of Sir Walter de Helyun, Sir John de Oketon, Peter de Chester, and others, on the third of the ides of February [11th], 1271.

OMNIBUS, etc., Willelmus le Botiler de Weryngton salutem [fol. 32^b.] in domino. Noverit universitas vestra, me divinae pietatis intuitu dedisse et imperpetuum pro me et hæredibus meis concessisse, Domino Abbatii de Cokersand et ejusdem loci Conventui ibidem Deo et beatae Mariae servientibus, pro salute animæ meæ antecessorum et successorum meorum quadraginta solidos sterlingorum de camera mea et de cameris hæredum meorum persolvendos quolibet anno ad duos anni terminos, videlicet ad Pentecosten viginti solidos, et ad festum Sancti Martini viginti solidos. Et si contingat quod ego prædictus Willelmus le Botiler vel hæredes mei in aliquo termino de prædicta soluzione defecerimus, quod absit, volo et concedo pro me et hæredibus meis teneri eidem domino Abbatii de Cokersand et ejusdem loci Conventui in quadraginta solidis sterlingorum pro quolibet termino non observato. In cuius rei, etc.

Grant in frankalmoign from William le Boteler of Warrington to the Lord Abbot of Cockersand and the monastery of that place, for the health of his soul, and the souls of his ancestors and successors, of a perpetual charge of forty shillings sterling to be paid by himself and his heirs out of his or their treasury by half-yearly payments, viz., twenty shillings at Whitsuntide and the like sum at Martinmas. In default of payment of any part of the said sum, he bound himself and his heirs to the said Lord Abbot in the sum of forty shillings sterling, to be forfeited for every such term not duly observed. [S.D. 1268-1303.]

SCIANT, etc., quod ego Willelmus de Quinequike dedi, etc., tres acres terræ meæ in Thorinton,¹ in puram et perpetuam elemosinam, cum communione prædictæ villæ quatuor bobus et vj vaccis et duobus equis, decem ovibus cum agnis, cum aisiamentis in turbariis, et fontibus. Hiis testibus.

Memorandum quod Dominus Alanus de Singiltona et hæredes sui feofati sunt de ista terra pro homagio et servicio suo et redundunt per annum quatuor solidos argenti ad duos anni terminos, scilicet ad Pascha et ad festum sancti Michaelis.

Grant in frankalmoign from William de Winwick [to the monks of Cockersand] of three acres of his land in Thornton, with common of pasture for four oxen, six cows, two horses and ten sheep with their lambs, and with easements in the peat mosses and springs. [S.D. 1201-1217.]

¹ William, son of Robert de Winwick held in Thornton, in the parish of Poulton-in-the-Fylde, five carucates of land in thanage, by the service of 20s. (Survey of A.D. 1212.) Before the year 1212, Robert de Winwick had granted one carucate to Ughtred, son of Huck, for 4s. yearly, which was held in the year 1212 by his grandson, Adam de Singleton (son of Richard, son of Ughtred). In the year 1258, Margery de Winwick, daughter of William de Winwick, and widow of Michael de Carleton, died seised of two carucates of land in Thornton, held in capite of the King, by the service of 8s. Richard de Thornton was her son and heir. Before the last mentioned date William de Winwick, or his daughter Margery, had alienated the two remaining carucates, of which William Banastre was seised at the time of his death, in 17 Edward II. He held in capite of the King, by the service of 8s. yearly.
